

Terrific U.S. Pounding To Haiphong Effort

SAIGON (AP) — American fighter-bombers gave the Hanoi-Haiphong military complex on Thursday its hardest pounding since the resumption of full-scale bombing more than two months ago. U.S. military spokesmen announced today.

Pilots said they hit barracks, storage depots and vehicle maintenance facilities four and five miles west of Hanoi, left a fuel depot in flames a mile northwest of Haiphong, wrecked war materials at the Cat Bi airfield on the southeastern edge of the port city and dropped two railroad bridges within 25 miles of the Chinese border.

More than 200 strikes were flown over the North Thursday, considerably fewer than the total of more than 300 the day before. But spokesmen said more targets were hit in the Hanoi-Haiphong area than on any previous day.

While the fighter-bombers were hitting the northern end of the country Thursday, B52s were pounding the southern panhandle for the first time in nearly two months.

The targets today were supply depots scattered from inside the demilitarized zone to 31 miles north of the DMZ. One senior officer said he could find no evidence that American bombing has deprived the North Vietnamese of supplies in South Vietnam's northern provinces. But he said it is "only a matter of time."

Radio Hanoi reported that an F4 Phantom was shot down Thursday over Vinh Linh, just north of the DMZ, and the pilot was captured. The broadcast did not give his name, nor did it say if he was injured or what happened to the second crewman. Earlier Hanoi claimed that three U.S. planes were downed Thursday.

The U.S. Command announced no losses in the North Thursday. But it said a Navy RA5 reconnaissance jet crashed into the Tonkin Gulf 17 miles southeast of Haiphong Wednesday and the two crewmen were rescued unharmed.

One U.S. Air Force Phantom flying a night mission in defense of besieged An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon, accidentally dropped a bomb on South Vietnamese troops in the city and killed 10 of them, the U.S. Command said. Another 19 were reported wounded. It was the third accidental bombing in three days by U.S. or South Vietnamese planes.

Field reports said lead units of a relief column moving up Highway 13 were only 600 yards from An Loc but were moving very slowly. The highway was still cut by enemy artillery, rocket and mortar attacks, but the Saigon command said 192 North Vietnamese were killed in a series of clashes ranging from the northern outskirts of the city southward 10 miles along the highway. The command said at least 17 South Vietnamese troops were killed and 51 were wounded.

Also on the southern front, the North Vietnamese pulled out of Trang Bang, 28 miles northwest of Saigon, after three days of fighting, and the Phnom Penh-Saigon highway was reopened through the town.

Associated Press correspondent Richard Blystone reported from the northern front that resistance had stiffened against South Vietnamese marines driving north of the My Chanh River defense line.

Field reports said 76 North Vietnamese had been killed since more than 2,000 marines began the sweep Thursday. Two Marines were reported killed and 11 wounded.

Just below the northernmost defense line, South Vietnamese paratroopers reported killing 52 North Vietnamese in six hours of fighting three miles southwest of My Chanh. Field reports said eight paratroopers were wounded.

The South Vietnamese also claimed 93 North Vietnamese killed on the northern edges of Kontum, in the central highlands, and said one medium tank was captured. Five South Vietnamese troops were killed and 41 wounded, headquarters said.

No McGovern Support

Muskie Still Candidate

LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, today refused to support the nomination of Sen. George McGovern and declared he remains a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Confounding a variety of predictions, Muskie said he would be doing McGovern a great disservice and would harm the reforms that have opened the Democratic convention to popular participation if he were to endorse the South Dakota Democrat.

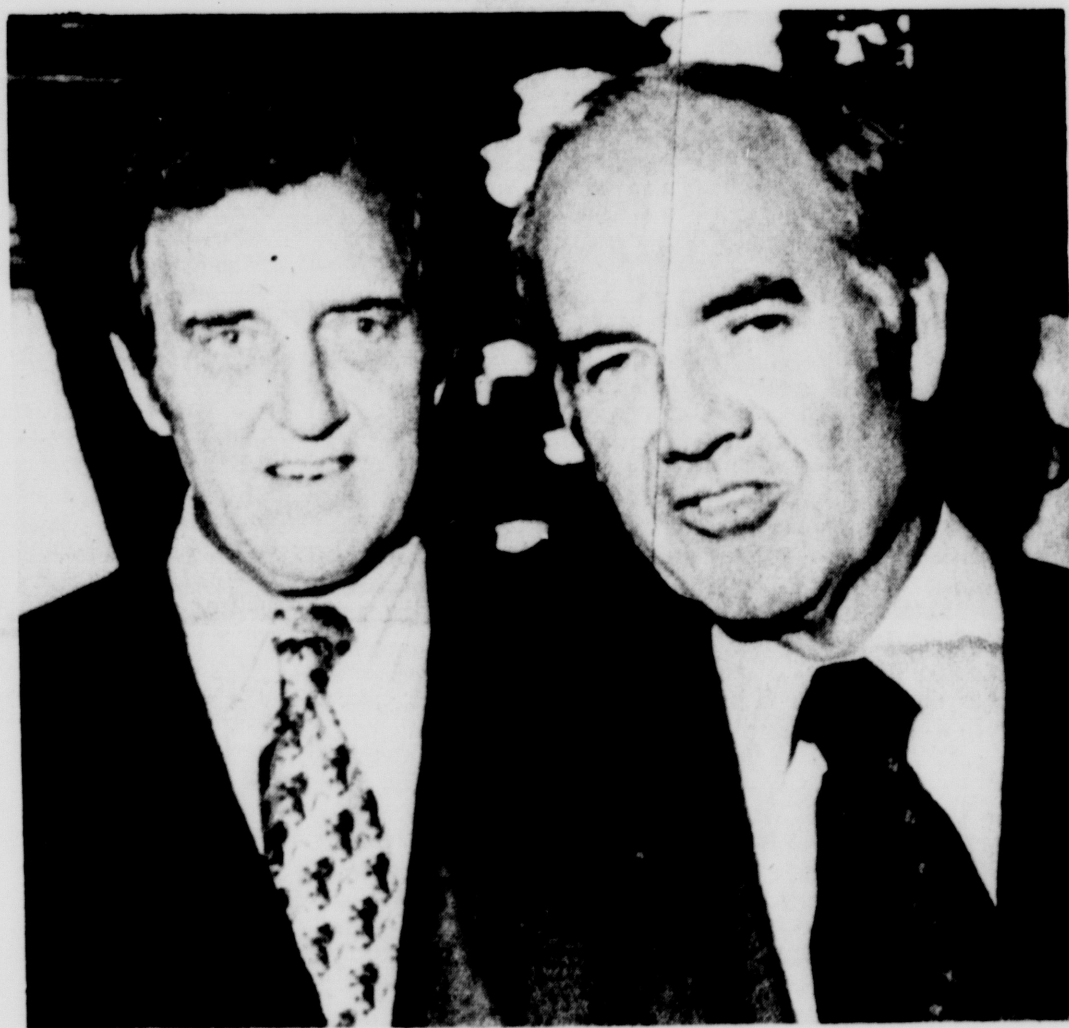

"Party unity is not achieved with the magic wand of the kingmaker," Muskie said.

"No man can hand Sen. McGovern a united party," he told a luncheon meeting of the National Press Club.

"I hope Senator McGovern will use the time before the convention to draw on the wisdom and experience of those elements of the party not yet prepared to support his candidacy," Muskie said.

He said McGovern will go to the convention with between 1,200 and 1,300 delegate votes and said it is only realistic to assume "that his nomination is probable." The winner will need 1,509 votes.

But he said McGovern must broaden his base, must seek the support of party leaders of many points of view, and predicted that if he does "he will find the

Kissinger Departs on Journey

By PETER T. SUM
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger was flying to Japan today for his twice-postponed visit to strengthen the Nixon administration's relations with America's most important Asian ally.

President Nixon's adviser on national security was due in Tokyo tonight for an unofficial weekend visit as the guest of the non-governmental Japan-U.S. Economic Council. But his schedule was crowded with meetings with officials, from Prime Minister Eisaku Sato down.

Japanese newspapers said the chief topics of the talks would be Japan's role in international affairs following Nixon's visits to Peking and Moscow, and U.S. policies toward Communist China and the Nationalist Chinese regime on Taiwan.

The Nixon administration hoped that Kissinger's powers of persuasion would repair some of the damage done to Japanese-American relations by Washington's failure to consult Sato in advance of the switch in its China policy last summer and by its restrictions to curtail Japanese exports to the United States.

The Asahi Shimbun, Japan's biggest newspaper, said sources in the Foreign Ministry told it Kissinger was coming to Japan "to demonstrate not by words but by deeds the importance the Nixon administration attaches to Japan in its foreign policy."

"There has been no time in the postwar period that the gap in Japan-U.S. mutual understanding was as wide as it is now," said an editorial in the paper. It accused Nixon's foreign policy of "ignoring the position which Japan should occupy in international politics and Japan's role in peace."

The English-language Japan Times cited Prime Minister Sato's retirement expected later this month and said Kissinger "will doubtless be sounding out the potential leaders of the post-Sato period for clues to what a political change in Japan may mean to his country."

Composite Is Delayed Once Again

Further delays in the composite picture of the man who allegedly raped two Sedalia women in the last two months were announced Friday by Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax.

Fairfax said both rape victims have met the last three days with a private artist, who also is an art instructor at State Fair Community College. The composite picture of the alleged rapist according to the most recent victim, has been completed, Fairfax said, but the artist was still working on the composite picture of the first victim's assailant at 1 p.m. Friday.

Fairfax said he expected the composites to resemble the same man.

Fairfax also said he would not release the composite pictures to The Democrat-Capitol until he first saw both drawings. Fairfax had not seen the composite picture based on the first victim's description at 1 p.m. Friday.

Requirements Say Complete Shower A Swimming Must

Jack Coutts, superintendent of Sedalia's parks, announced Friday that new state requirements demand that persons wishing to use swimming pools must wear street clothes to the pool and shower before entering the pool.

Coutts said he learned of the new regulation from the Park Board Friday. "We'll be as lenient as we can until people get used to the idea," Coutts said, "but after Monday we're going to give the rule strict enforcement."

He added that the new requirement was designed to serve as a health precaution. He said persons refusing to take a shower would not be allowed access to the facilities. "We'll have a pool employee in the shower room to make sure the rule is followed," Coutts said.

He said he did not know which state agency passed the regulation to the Park Board.

'Humbled and Flattered'

Kleindienst Gets Senate OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — A "humbled and flattered" Richard G. Kleindienst has become the nation's top law-enforcement officer after a four-month controversy which could set the tone for the upcoming presidential campaign.

The 64-19 Senate vote Thursday approving Kleindienst, a 48-year-old Phoenix, Ariz., lawyer, as attorney general ended the longest confirmation fight for a presidential nominee in memory.

Throughout the 24 days of hearings on the nomination of Kleindienst to succeed John N. Mitchell, liberal Democrats centered their attack on the administration's ties with big business, a theme they are likely to repeat during the fall's presidential campaign.

Specifically, they attempted to discredit Kleindienst's denial that he played a role in settlement of three antitrust suits against International Telephone & Telegraph Corp., the nation's ninth-largest business.

Settlement of the antitrust suits was linked by columnist Jack Anderson with ITT's commitment of up to $400,000 to San Diego to help the city obtain this summer's Republican National Convention later moved to Miami Beach.

Despite grumblings that he was too conservative and had helped formulate hard-nosed Justice Department policies for dealing with demonstrators and dissenters, Kleindienst won the Senate Judiciary Committee's unanimous approval the first time around.

Then, on the day his nomination was to be taken up by the full Senate, Anderson published an interview with ITT lobbyist Dita Beard and a memo purportedly written by her which connected the antitrust suit settlement with the ITT commitment to San Diego.

Kleindienst immediately asked that the hearings be reopened in an effort to remove the cloud over his head. The committee agreed.

The liberal Democrats on the panel set off on a wide-ranging inquiry that took them to a Denver hospital to question Mrs. Beard and led them finally to the portals of the White House.

On Thursday, despite 24 days of hearings and more than 2,000 pages of testimony and exhibits, the Democrats attempted to have the Senate send the nomination back to the committee for another week of testimony. Their proposal failed, 63 to 29.

In the final vote, no Republicans voted against Kleindienst's confirmation.

Massive Education Proposal to Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has sent a $21.3-billion education bill to President Nixon and a message to the courts that it wants a halt in busing for school desegregation.

The big education bill with its antibusing rider was passed by the House Thursday, 218 to 180. It had passed the Senate on a 63-15 vote.

The bill combines funding authorization for a wide variety of educational programs with a provision that would prevent federal court desegregation orders from having effect for 18 months unless all appeals have been exhausted.

By the end of the 18 months, supporters of the provision hope, the Supreme Court will have fixed limits for busing for the purpose of school desegregation.

The White House said Nixon is dissatisfied with the busing provision—he is said to want a stronger moratorium—but sponsors of the bill expect him to sign it.

The White House said today that President Nixon feels that busing provisions attached to the pending omnibus higher education bill "are not effective and will not be effective."

But, deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren said "I would not want to leave you with the impression that there is active consideration of veto of the bill."

Warren reiterated that it is Nixon's view that a moratorium on court-ordered busing is the way to resolve the problem in a fast, viable and fair manner. Warren said Nixon is urging Congress to discuss the moratorium legislation he sent up and to act on it prior to the opening of schools in September.

Civil-rights liberals contended the busing provision signals a retreat from the nation's commitment to racial equality.

The educational provisions were all but overlooked in the strident debate over busing.

The main bill would: —Launch a new program of direct federal aid to colleges and universities that could provide them with as much as $1 billion a year.

—Entitle every college student to a grant of $1,400 a year, minus what his parents could afford to contribute toward his education.

—Authorize $1 billion a year to help elementary and secondary schools desegregate.

—Establish a national institute of education to foster research into all aspects of the learning process.

Dedication Planned For Centennial Pool

A 15 minute ceremony at 1 p.m. Saturday by Mayor Jerry Jones will highlight dedication activities at the Centennial Park Swimming Pool.

Saturday's ceremony will climax the dreams of those who first conceived of the pool when Centennial Park was dedicated in 1960 and who later followed its post-nomineer-plagued construction history, which began last September.

Jack Coutts, superintendent of parks, said he "was really happy that the pool was going to open ... people have been wanting it for so long and we're glad they are finally getting it."

Optimistic On Middle East

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — More than at any time in a quarter-century, conditions now exist in the Middle East that open "the path to peace" between Jews and Arabs, a broad-gauged but incisive church study has concluded.

It comes at a time of heightened bitterness over the terrorist massacre at Tel Aviv's airport. But the study, remarkably, has drawn extensive support from those of divergent views on the over-all problem.

Most such studies in the past have faced sharp criticism from one side or the other. But the new one has been applauded, with some qualifications, by specialists of varying sympathies, both on Arab affairs and Judaism.

It says that peoples and governments in the Middle East "are now in a position to move toward reconciliation in a way that has not been possible" since 1947 on the eve of Israel's establishment as a nation.

Oddly, the study says, the changes in climate on both sides have "occurred quite unexpectedly in many ways" since the June 1967 war, which Arabs called a "setback" and in which Israel annexed border areas.

Although the Arab states have rearmament and occasionally resumed hostilities, the study adds, "they have undergone a marked adjustment of attitude not always apparent in public pronouncements."

"It's chief characteristic is the de facto acceptance of Israel."

For Israel, an unforeseen result of the 1967 annexations has been to open a "window on the Arab world," sharpening Israel's awareness that its destiny is linked with Arab progress, the study says, adding:

"Increasing numbers of Israeli Jews and Palestinian Arabs on both sides of the 1967 cease-fire line recognize that violence has failed as a substitute for negotiation and mutual recognition."

The 21,000-word document was drawn up by a 10-member United Presbyterian commission, headed by the Rev. Dr. Elwyn Smith of Temple University, and accepted by the denomination's recent assembly for churchwide study.

Coffee House Opens Friday

"New Wine," a Christian coffee house, will be opened at 8:30 p.m. Friday at 664 East Broadway.

The Rev. A. Wilson Phillips, pastor of Westside Assembly of God Church which is sponsoring the coffee house, said it is "designed primarily to challenge young people to a personal encounter with Jesus Christ."

"The center invites young people to come to rap sessions which are conducted in an informal Christian atmosphere with peer groups," he added. The coffee house will provide contemporary Christian music from other coffee houses and also sell soft drinks and refreshments.

Mr. Phillips said he has invited a staff of young persons to start the coffee house. The staff will consist of Tom Duncan and Miss Joyce Kurtz, students from Evangel College, Springfield; Miss Ritchell Craig, student at the University of Missouri at Columbia; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Downy, both former Sedalians now living in Springfield; and Mike Buckallew, airman at Whiteman AFB. There will be also Sedalia youths helping at the coffee house.

The "Overflow," a music group from the "New Wine" coffee house in Springfield will play here this Friday and Saturday evening. The coffee is open to the public.

Tentative plans are to have the coffee house open Friday and Saturday nights, Mr. Phillips said.

Kennett Blaze

Kennett, Mo., firemen relax after battling a blaze that swept the east side of the Kennett town square Wednesday and Thursday, destroying at least five buildings and damaging five others. Because of a lack of fire walls separating the stores, the fire quickly engulfed the entire east side of the square. Five men were injured during the four-hour fight against the blaze.

Sedalians To Attend Explo

A delegation of 41 Sedalians are planning to attend Explo '72 at Dallas, Tex., Monday through June 17. The mammoth training session for evangelism is being sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ International.

Riding the first Baptist Church bus from Sedalia will be 25 members of the church and 16 from New Hope Baptist Church.

Area residents who would like to join the delegation are asked to contact Gary Tolbert, chairman of the First Baptist Church delegation (826-2160).

According to Tolbert, the basic course at Explo will provide instruction in how to experience the abundant Christian life and how to share one's faith in Christ. The advanced course will teach methods of evangelical outreach for individuals and a "Way of Life" program for churches to saturate their areas with the claims of Christ.

Women Adopt $97,500 Budget

(Democrat-Capital Service)

CONCORDIA — Delegates to the Second biennial Missouri district Lutheran Women's Missionary League (LWML) held here June 6 and 7 adopted a $97,500 mission program.

Seventy-five per cent of the funds gathered by the 10,618-member Missouri district auxiliary of the Lutheran Church — Missouri Synod will be used for projects selected by the delegates at this convention for use in their own district. Twenty-five per cent will be forwarded to International LWML for projects abroad. Among projects selected are $10,000 for the expanded ministry program of St. Paul's College, Concordia; $5,000 toward a new church site for Mount Calvary Lutheran Church, Excelsior Springs; and $5,000 to a day care center at St. John's Lutheran Church, Kansas City, Missouri.

Area residents who attended the conference were Mrs. Delbert Steffens, Mrs. Florence Wagenknecht, Mrs. Leland Harsch, and Mrs. William C. Bergman.

Dr. Oswald Hoffmann, Lutheran Hour radio speaker who gave the key-note address, said Christians have the joy of Christ to push us through the door to shout "God is here—Let's celebrate!" This celebration, this joy does something on the inside which comes out on the outside. Dr. Oswald pointed out, "God Is Here—Let's Celebrate!" was the conference theme.

Delegates also elected new officers. They are Miss Jacqueline Rathel, Jefferson City, second vice-president, Mrs. Harold Homan, Shelby, secretary, Mrs. Rex Peterson of Monett, treasurer, and the Rev. Paul Spitz, St. Louis, pastoral counselor.

(Democrat-Capital Service)

BOSTON — Missourians were among the nearly 7,000 Christian Scientists who attended the annual meeting of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ Scientist, here on Monday. Delegates from around the world attended the meeting. "Christian Healing: The Demand on Everyone" was the meeting theme.

Arthur P. Wuth, the newly-elected chairman of the Christian Science board of directors, called on members to dedicate themselves anew to the practice of Christian healing. "Fulfillment of the church's purpose depends on nothing less than Christian healing, enlightenment and regeneration," Mr. Wuth told the gathering.

It was announced at the meeting that the 28-story church administration building and the five-story church colonnade will be completed late this year.

War's Real Terror Is Seen First Hand

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

TRANG BANG, Vietnam (AP) — Before dawn today a young boy died of napalm burns in this ramshackle town halfway between Cambodia and Saigon.

The sun rose on tired and rain soaked families cautiously walking back to the town. Some found their homes and shops in smoldering ruins.

Another nasty little battle was over.

Trang Bang was the scene Thursday of a mistaken napalm attack by South Vietnamese air force planes. Canisters of blazing jellied gasoline fell on civilians and troops alike and 20 persons—children, women, men and soldiers—were killed or injured.

Saigon has been waiting for something to happen since the offensive began 10 weeks ago. Taking the battle of Trang Bang together with similar engagements around the capital in recent weeks, it is clear that Saigon need not have to wait much longer.

"The North Vietnamese have called the play and are now lining up," remarked an American adviser who was huddled with

Welfare Overhaul Nearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Almost a year's labor designed to massively overhaul two of the government's biggest people programs—Social Security and welfare benefits—nears an end today in the Senate Finance Committee.

Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., said he would try to wrap up work on the reform bill today, though a final vote may be postponed until Monday.

The committee has made hundreds of changes in the programs since it first began voting in March. Work began last July.

Still to be decided is how large across-the-board increases for the nation's 27 million Social Security recipients will be and how the new benefits will be financed.

The best guess is for a general increase of 20 per cent in benefits, although Long said the committee cited a possible figure of 15 per cent.

The bill makes far-reaching changes in Social Security, welfare, and two big health programs, Medicare for the aged and Medicaid for the poor.

The most controversial change voted so far knocks out of a bill as it passed the House President Nixon's welfare-reform plan for families with dependent children. The senators substituted tough work requirements for the heads of these families.

Nixon's plan contains a guaranteed annual income of $2,400 for a family of four and supplementary federal payment for the working poor.

The committee rejected both of these features, precipitating an almost-certain bitter floor fight.

The bill contains broad new Social Security benefits for widows, persons who work beyond 65, and retirees whose incomes are impaired by inflation; brings 15 million disabled persons under Medicare health protection; increases assistance substantially to aged, blind and disabled persons on welfare; and seeks to control spiralling Medicare and Medicaid costs.

In a major decision Thursday, the committee decided to extend, for the first time, Medicare coverage to many prescription drugs taken by aged persons at home.

The government would pay an estimated $700 million of the annual $1-billion cost, though stopping short of covering $14 billion worth of other prescription drugs used mainly to treat short-term illnesses.

Knife-Wielding Man Arrested By Off-Duty Officer

Charles H. Schmitz, 34, Fulton, was arrested by off-duty police officer Virgil Frazier at 7:28 p.m. Thursday for disorderly conduct by threatening children with a knife.

Police told The Democrat-Capital Schmitz was chasing children in the yards in front of the public housing units at that address with a stick in one hand and a knife in the other, when he was spotted by Officer Frazier, who lives nearby.

Frazier forcibly disarmed Schmitz when he refused to obey the commands of the police officer.

Schmitz was released on $50 cash bond at 8:39 p.m. Thursday. He is scheduled to appear in Municipal Court today.

She was a member of the Houstonia Baptist Church.

Also surviving are one brother, Elmo Alexander, Grants Pass, Ore.; and one sister, Mrs. Georgia Hockensmith, Lincoln, Neb.

Funeral services and burial will be held at Walla Walla, Wash., at 10 a.m. Monday.

The body was taken to the Moore Funeral Home, LaMonte and was taken to Walla Walla Friday morning.

his Vietnamese officers over a battle map at the side of Highway 1.

"The action at Trang Bang alone is a puzzle. But if you look at all the things the other sides does, then it makes sense," he said.

Trang Bang unfortunately straddles Highway 1 that leads straight into Saigon from the northwest. South Vietnamese commanders charged with the defense of the capital did not hesitate to use napalm, bombs and artillery to push the enemy back.

One Vietnamese colonel said, "I'm so happy today we didn't have to destroy more of Trang Bang. Fortunately the Communists moved on."

It seems the Saigon government will defend the capital at all costs, preferably at the expense of the countryside rather than the city.

The Communist command must be aware of this determination by now, and have felt it, if casualty counts can be trusted. That is probably why they have not embarked on a head-on, all-or-nothing rush into the capital as they did in the Tet offensive of 1968.

What are the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong doing instead?

Northwest of Saigon they have reoccupied all the sanctuaries and base areas from which they set off in the early 1960s to conquer South Vietnam. The stronghold they eventually applied forced American troops into the war.

They are now using the maze of jungle trails and roads in this area—called War Zone C—like an uncontested thruway that takes them across the Saigon River into the populated areas. It is only near towns like Trang Bang that they are meeting their first meaningful resistance.

Much fought-over, tunnelled enemy headquarter zones that thousands of American infantrymen will remember—the Ho Bo Woods, the Boi Loi Woods, the Iron Triangle—are reoccupied by their former tenants.

areas of agreement can be broadened and the differences narrowed."

"I will continue as a candidate," Muskie said emphatically.

Muskie said Thursday he was still a candidate. He and McGovern met then in what was described as a friendly and neighborly sounding-out session.

"There was no pressure from me to get him to withdraw or to release his delegates," McGovern said.

Asked if he expected an immediate endorsement from Muskie or the release of delegates pledged to the Maine senator, McGovern said "no."

There was something of a family-reunion air during a photo session where the two men were joined by McGovern's chief rival for the nomination Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn.

"So this is what I have to do to get back on the front pages," Muskie remarked with a rueful grin as he posed between the two active candidates.

McGovern, who has said his chief role now is to conciliate party chiefs uneasy about his winning the nomination, also plans a private meeting with Humphrey.

In a copyright story today, the New York Daily News said Muskie's name has been raised by McGovern as a possible running mate.

"In an exclusive interview with the News, as he flew back from his California primary victory, McGovern heaped praise on his former rival ... and said he would add strength to the Democratic ticket—where strength is needed, in the populous Northeast and among Catholics, ethnics, party regulars and organized labor," the newspaper reported.

Elsewhere Thursday, Bob Hurwitz, Humphrey's campaign manager in Florida, said he was disenchanted by the Minnesota Democrat's announcement that he might, under certain circumstances, accept Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace as a running mate. Hurwitz said he is ready to "desert the ship and ask others to do the same."

In Atlanta, Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia said McGovern is moving toward a position more acceptable to the South and to Wallace supporters.

Carter said while he does not yet concede McGovern the nomination, the candidate's recent restatement of his views on prisoners of war, amnesty for draft evaders and equal treatment under law for all states are important steps to reassure the South.

In another meeting of candidates, meanwhile, Rep. Shirley Chisholm said she and Wallace might have more in common than was suspected.

Still confined to Holy Cross Hospital in Silver Spring, Md., where he is recovering from wounds suffered in an attempted assassination May 15, Wallace was visited Thursday by Mrs. Chisholm.

"We both in our way fight for what we believe," she said, adding she and Wallace have similar concern over the power of large corporations, unfair taxes, and the "unresponsiveness of the government."

She said she couldn't work with Wallace because of his views on school integration. But if he moderated his stand, she said, "maybe he might be acceptable" as the Democratic party's vice-presidential candidate.

In other political developments:—McGovern supporters were reported to have formed a fund-raising unit known as "The Woonsocket Club" and limited to donors of $25,000 or more. Woonsocket, S.D., is the home of McGovern's wife, Eleanor.

—Bob Moretti, speaker of the California State Assembly and Muskie's California campaign chairman, endorsed McGovern as did Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

Governor Signs New Legislation

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes signed 12 more bills Thursday which were approved during the 1972 legislative session. That leaves 76 awaiting his signature.

One of the measures will create a statewide milk inspection board of 12 members to set uniform standards of inspection for Grade "A" milk in Missouri.

Others signed will: Raise maximum salary levels $2,000 for employees of magistrate courts.

Revise Missouri's drivers' license and financial responsibility regulations.

Allow credit for any advance or partial payment for tort liability to be subtracted from final court judgment.

Provide for adoption of non-partisan court plan in Clay and Platte counties for circuit and probate courts through petition put on the general election ballot.

Provide that all employers pay a discharged employee any wage due within seven days of termination of employment.

Authorize persons whose religious beliefs keep them from the polls on election day to vote absentee. Give Jackson County election clerks a $10 a day pay increase.

Give the St. Louis coroner and his staff pay raises for additional duties.

Change the nonpartisan candidate for municipal election in St. Louis filing date from 15 days to no more than 85 nor less than 68 days before the election to allow printing time.

Change in St. Louis the time of canvass of election returns from the Monday following the election to the 10th day after election.

Change the voting age in St. Louis City to 18 and lower state residency requirements to 90 days.

A statewide residency change, which would have also added full constitutional rights for 18-year-olds, failed to pass this session.

Criticism By Bond In Audit

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — It appears the state Public Service Commission's books are in order, but state Auditor Christopher "Kit" Bond made some management criticism in an audit of the regulatory agency made public Thursday.

A so-called "management advisory report" attached to an audit governing July 1969 through June 1971 was critical of expense accounts and use of credit cards by certain employees.

Under a subtitle: "expense account abuse," Bond's auditors note "certain engineers and engineer aides, who remained at the same work location for three to six years, received during this period approximately $120,000 for travel expenses." Six or eight employees were involved, according to Martin J. Rosen, CPA and supervisor of state audits whose signature is on the report. He refused to name them.

Bond's report took the position that an assignment of such long duration constitutes a transfer and the engineers should not be paid travel expenses.

The report also calls attention to one employee, listed as a full time PSC worker but whom the report said holds other state jobs, as using the PSC gasoline credit card to fill his own personal automobile.

The report notes that the employee "was allowed to use the 'assigned' credit card to charge gasoline for his personal car, allegedly to reimburse him for use of his car while on agency business." But the auditors said the "credit card abuse", as it lists it, "allows for possible fraudulent activities."

Rosen would not name the employee and said he did not know his title.

"We're not making any charges," Rosen said.

Bond's cover letter to the governor said the audit "did not reveal any material exceptions that would reduce the reliability of such audit information used by the commission in its decision making process."

Leader of the Pack

St. Louis County Supervisor Lawrence K. Roos donned a helmet and climbed aboard a mini-bike to lead a parade of bike riders in opening a new St.

Louis County Mini Bike Park Thursday. The park is designed to keep children off the streets, alleys and yards, and onto a safe, supervised course. (UPI)

Confesses To 1935 Slaying

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Lonnie Cross, an old man bent with arthritis, limped into the sheriff's office and said he wanted to "get right with the Lord." He said he had killed a man in 1935.

Homicide Detective William Beacham reported that Cross, 66, said Wednesday "he had something he wanted to get off his mind...he said he had killed a man."

The detective said a check through police files confirmed the old man's story.

On Nov. 3, 1935, Beacham said, a Lonnie Smith was fighting with his common law wife and stabbed her several times. A friend, Ed Bozer, tried to break up the scuffle and was fatally stabbed in the head by Smith, the detective said.

On Jan. 2, 1936, a grand jury issued a first-degree murder warrant for Smith. That warrant is still outstanding.

Cross told Beacham that after the knifing he fled to Georgia. A year later he moved to New Orleans where he has lived since under the name of Cross, he said.

"He said he'd become a religious man about 12 years ago and this had really been bothering him ever since, he said he wanted to live a good Christian life," Beacham said.

"He said he wanted to turn himself in and pay the consequences."

At 8 p.m. Lonnie Cross, alias Lonnie Smith, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Dorkas Drake on the charge of first-degree murder.

He was held without bond in the Duval County Jail.

McCreary Guilty In Assault Case

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Thomas McCreary, 27, of New York City, was found guilty by a Circuit Court jury Thursday of assaulting three public officers during a shootout last Feb. 16.

The jury assessed punishment at 20 years on each of three counts. Circuit Judge Luckland Bloom said he will determine later whether or not the sentences should be served concurrently.

The shootout involved two companions of McCreary's and five policemen. One companion, Ronald Carter, 28, was killed. St. Louis Patrolman Richard Archambault was seriously wounded. The shooting erupted after police stopped a car McCreary was driving.

During his trial McCreary said he did not participate in the shooting, but crouched on the floor of the car. Patrolman Larry Tinnell testified that he saw gunfire coming from the window where McCreary had been sitting.

Angela Davis' Acquittal No Triumph of Justice

WASHINGTON — With galling haste, millions of Americans have tried to portray the acquittal of Angela Davis as proof that the American system of justice is fair, throwing equal protections around the poor, the black, the unpopular.

Rowan

It is galling because the people saying this are, for the most part, the very people who leaped with unbecoming speed to declare Miss Davis guilty of plotting and facilitating kidnapping and murder.

As I reported earlier, throughout this black woman's long ordeal I was bombarded with letters from readers who declared me "a racist" who refuses to condemn in your column black criminals like Angela Davis.

I replied that I was restrained by "the little technicality" that Miss Davis had not been convicted of anything but I must in honesty say that I held out little hope for her acquittal.

Black militancy is itself close to a crime today in many circles of this country, the Justice Department being one of them. Add the fact that Miss Davis is an avowed Communist, a well-known "troublemaker" and one who indulges in rhetoric that enflames the hackles of the "silent majority," and it seemed too much to hope that white jurors would acquit her and then wind up at her victory celebration.

This can hardly be explained as a jury responding timorously to the protests of Miss Davis' friends in the U.S. and abroad — as those friends now claim. About all we can attribute to the public clamor is that it made Miss Davis even more of a celebrity, and celebrities do get something closer to justice in this society because they get better lawyers (thanks to public contributions of money), and the publicity forces judges and juries to take their responsibilities more seriously.

Yet, it is an outrage to call the Davis decision a vindication of our system of justice. The whole of the mess surrounding Miss Davis' prosecution constitutes some very serious indictments of our system of justice.

How can we forget that this woman, now declared innocent, was held in jail for 16 months without bail under circumstances where a drumfire of prosecution leaks and propaganda led to press stories that left millions of Americans certain of her guilt?

Then there is the case of the "Soledad Brothers," George Jackson, Fleeta Drumgo and John Clutchette — three men accused of killing Soledad Prison guard John V. Mills on Jan. 20, 1970.

First, consider the fact that Jackson had served almost 11 years of an "up to life sentence" for a $70 armed robbery at the time Mills was killed. He was suffering confinement and punishment that tends to get a little stiffer under our system if you are poor, or black, or uneducated, and let no one doubt that among our 1,600,000 prison inmates are many innocent poor people, and others suffering severe punishment for small offenses.

(It was her love for Jackson, the prosecution contended without convincing the jury, that caused Miss Davis to plot and abet the Marin County kidnap attempt that led to four deaths.)

The bitter fruits of this situation fell anew in August 1971 when Jackson was killed in an alleged escape attempt from San Quentin Prison — the "escape" allegation viewed with grave doubts by many Americans, this reporter included.

Then in March 1972 came the bitter irony of Drumgo and Clutchette being found not guilty of the murder of Mills, leaving the horrible picture of Jackson dying while allegedly trying to escape prosecution for a murder HE did not commit.

The whole mess hardly vindicates our overall system of justice.

What the Davis acquittal seems to say is this: if you take 12 normally decent Americans, of whatever race, and expose them to competent attorneys, fair judges and all the evidence, those jurors will often rise above the meanness, the bigotry of an ill-informed society that is too often warped by governmental propaganda passed along by a less-than-diligent press.

That jury in San José could have looked at the cold evidence and decided "not guilty" and then fled from the scene as fast as possible. The jurors knew, after all, that Miss Davis will probably remain unpopular to the white power structure, since avowed Communists are not preferred members of the Establishment.

But those jurors saw her as a human being who had suffered a two-year ordeal. They stayed around to celebrate out of empathy, but also out of the satisfaction that they had contributed to the too-weak fight against big-government oppression and political persecutions.

That doesn't vindicate our system of justice, but it does say that hope for its salvation remains alive.

When Shakespeare had Hamlet inveigh against the "heartache and the thousand natural shocks that flesh is heir to," he made an imposing list. But he left out one thing.

Leaky roofs.

I can think of nothing more apt to bring a man to the edge of madness, nothing so designed to call forth from his mouth foul curses and instill the urge to destroy, than a leaky roof.

I am now embarking upon my third year of life with a leaky roof. Pause, stranger, long enough for me to tell my tale.

It all began with a suspicious brown spot on my dining room ceiling. I painted it. But imperceptibly it grew in size over the months. Then one night, the first droplet. Would I had a penny for every one since then.

Before long another spot appeared, on a line with the first but three feet to the east. And in due time, it too began to ooze water.

Since my dining room roof is flat and without adequate drainage, I concluded that the leak was directly overhead, necessitating a new application of hot tar. The job was done in a frenzy of slapping and mopping by Roof Repair Team No. 1, carting around a boiling vat of tar that looked like it had been lifted from the witches' scene in "Macbeth." Afterwards I carefully repainted the dining room ceiling.

But with the next rain the small brown spots reappeared. By now the ceiling was beginning to exhibit a distinct bulge.

After one more tar job, applied equally upon my roof, sidewalk and patio by Roof Repair Team No. 2, paying special attention to utility lead-ins, flue openings and other suspicious spots, I sat back to confidently await the next rain.

It came, bringing with it the leak. Lesson No. 1: Never apply logic to a leaky roof.

Then a friend volunteered some advice. "The leak," he said, "could be anywhere. It could come in somewhere else, run 20 feet across a rafter, and drop on your dining room ceiling." That was a big help.

I tried a new approach. Roof Repair Man No. 3 suggested that rain might be coming in through the top of my dummy chimney and traveling down from there. A fabricated metal cupola for the chimney cost me $38.40. It glistens nicely in the sun but doesn't do a thing for my leak.

By then I was getting mad. I ripped all the clothes out of the closet, lowered the attic trap door and climbed up. My wife sprayed the roof with water as I sat in the 120-degree attic heat to watch for leaks. Nothing.

Roof Repair Man No. 4 estimated $250 to re-roof the entire back side of the house without guaranteeing it will stop the leak. By now I am desperate, but not that desperate.

Five weeks ago I had the shingles sealed down in an area directly above the flat roof. Two days later a thunderstorm hit, sending cascades of water over the roof.

No leak by dinner time. Early evening saw the roof still bone dry. By bed time I knew I was home free. It was not until 2 a.m. that I was gently nudged awake by the pitter-patter of water striking my hardwood floor.

Last week Roof Repair Man No. 4, whom we are getting to know pretty well now, as well as Dot and the kids, came out and applied a water-proofing solution to the bricks in my false chimney. It's a long shot, but so is retaining my sanity.

But in the dark periods of my soul I am still haunted by a recurring scene. The house is demolished, save for part of the dining room wall and a small patch of roof. I stand, sledge hammer in hand, amidst the plaster and siding of my once former home. It's raining.

As I look up at the only strip of roof left between me and the dark sky, a drop of water slides between the two remaining boards, lingers for a moment, and falls square into my eye.

Playing 'Parents' In Little League

Once again Little League is in full swing in Sedalia and across the nation. Unfortunately so is that unsavory character, the loudmouthed parent, who is apt to be on an ego trip at his kid's expense.

You know him well. He can be found in the stands, shouting derision at umpires and managers alike, while spurring junior on to feats worthy of a Mickey Mantle.

And he doesn't necessarily have to be a HE; the old lady can also belt out the verbal abuse with the best of them when things aren't going exactly her way.

An inside look at the pleasures and perils of Little League is the subject of a new book, "Laughing and Crying With Little League," by Catherine and Loren Broadus, published by Harper & Row. The Broaduses speak from 12 years' experience in Little League, both as coaches and in that most difficult of all positions to play — the parents.

"Father can be hero—or heel," they write. "It is a common problem in Little League baseball for the male parent to try to achieve prestige, status and recognition through his son and to push him too hard to become an outstanding player. While all the time he protests he only wants 'what's best for the boy.'"

The authors give an example of one such parent who was a "mild, pleasant, soft-spoken man until his son became involved with organized baseball." Then the father's relationship with his son changed radically.

"He made his son practice baseball in their backyard every evening from 5 to 7," they write. "In this father-son togetherness the father yelled at Junior constantly, and they ended each practice very unhappy. The boy liked to PLAY baseball, but he did not enjoy WORKING baseball. He would have enjoyed playing baseball with his father, but he did not like working for a tyrannical backyard boss. The father defeated his own ends, because the nervous child played worse and worse."

Instead of concentrating on making Junior an All-American player, concentrate on becoming an All-American father, the Broaduses advise.

Good advice, which every Little League parent in Sedalia should keep in mind as the shout of "Play Ball!" is heard throughout the city this summer.

"WHY DIDN'T SOMEBODY PRESCRIBE ACUPUNCTURE IN TIME?"

Merry-Go-Round

'Tacit' Viet Accord By Nixon, Brezhnev

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Richard Nixon and Leonid Brezhnev reached a "tacit understanding" during their secret Kremlin conversations that the two superpowers will start to disengage from Vietnam.

The President came home from Moscow convinced that the Russians want to end the Vietnam war but don't want to appear less stalwart in their support of Hanoi than the Chinese.

The war has been a drain on the Russians who have been supplying North Vietnam with expensive military hardware. Out of the Moscow meeting, therefore, may come a reduction in both Soviet and American arms shipments to the rival Vietnams.

Both Nixon and Brezhnev expressed a willingness, if they didn't reach a precise agreement, to phase down military aid to the opposing sides. The subject is so delicate inside the Kremlin, however, that the President carefully refrained from discussing Vietnam in his TV report to the Soviet people.

He brought to Moscow with him background papers, which portray the Kremlin leaders as almost paranoid about the Chinese. In the early war years, the Soviets would have nothing to do with peace efforts, lest it confirm Chinese charges that they were soft on the war.

The secret papers prepared for Nixon tell how the Soviet government, in May, 1965, refused even to deliver a peace message to the North Vietnamese. Lyndon Johnson merely wanted to notify Hanoi that he was ordering a bombing pause.

"I am not a postman," grumped Nikolai Firiyubin, the deputy foreign minister, when he was asked to relay the message. He suggested that the Americans find their "own ways of transmitting messages."

American Ambassador Foy Kohler, in a report to the State Department, blamed the incident upon "Soviet sensitivity" toward the Chinese Communists.

Washington was surprised, therefore, to find Soviet Premier Aleksei Kosygin eager two years later to serve as an intermediary between the United States and North Vietnam. He made the offer in February 1967, during talks with British leaders in London.

His phone calls were intercepted and he was overheard reporting jubilantly to Brezhnev in Moscow: "There's a great possibility of achieving the aim, if the Vietnamese will understand the present situation that we have passed to them. They will have to decide."

The North Vietnamese, however, rejected the overtures. Afterward, Kosygin ruefully told American Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson in Moscow that the role of the mediator was uncomfortable.

"They either complicated the problem," he said, "or pretended they were doing something when in fact they were not."

Kosygin said his intervention in London had provoked "fury" in Peking but that the Chinese had been the winners in the end when his efforts failed.

Then he asked Thompson suspiciously whether "the Chinese had approached the US (about the) possibility of negotiations, knowing they would fail and thus embarrass the Soviet Union."

Yet in a fascinating aside, Kosygin recalled that he personally had been in Hanoi when the United States began bombing North Vietnam.

"Why did not the U.S. turn to him at that time and explain to him its problems?" he asked the American ambassador. Kosygin didn't say, however, what he would have done.

In view of this background, Nixon handled the Chinese angle delicately in his talks with Brezhnev. No transcript was made except for the President's personal notes. However, he told aides afterward that the Vietnam discussions had been "intent" but "productive." Both the United States and Russia, he said, will begin backing away from the war.

The President, incidentally, was wary about his own credibility with Peking. He instructed his subordinates not to say anything to their Soviet counterparts that Chinese Premier Chou En-lai couldn't read. In other words, he didn't want U.S. negotiators telling the Soviets one thing and the Chinese another.

Only hours before an Air Force precision flyer died in a crash at the Transpo '72 show, consumer advocate Ralph Nader had begged Transportation Secretary John Volpe to call off the midair stunts.

Nader had decided to go directly to Volpe after the death of a 30-year-old crop duster who collided in an air race and an Australian air acrobat who was thrown from his huge kite.

These and several narrow escapes at the big transportation show had convinced Nader that the air exhibits were telling the public more about the horrors of transportation than its benefits.

Last Saturday, after the crop duster's death, Nader sent a telegram to Volpe urging him to call off the stunts. But, on an impulse, he decided to try to contact Volpe directly with a plea to end Sunday's busy schedule.

At 7 p.m., he reached Volpe's special assistant, Joe Bosco, who was impressed with Nader's urgent tone. Bosco located Volpe and passed on to him the consumer advocate's strange premonition.

Volpe told Bosco to get in touch with Transpo's general director, William Bird, and to advise him to weigh Nader's warning but to make up his own mind. Bird quickly decided the show must go on — and 21 hours after Nader's warning, the Air Force flyer plunged to his death.

Dogs Are Nuisance; Neighbor Seeks Aid

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is having to clean up after dogs who run free or are walked to our lawn and tree banks by their owners. Perhaps a reader may know of an inexpensive product to spread around that would repel those dogs? Our lawn is so large that it would cost a fortune to use a spray type repellent. — AMY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I hope someone can tell me how to clean the collar on a dark buckskin coat that has a label saying "Do Not Dry Clean." — LORNA B.

DEAR POLLY — and Mrs. S. F. R. whose mahogany dresser was marked up with a ball point pen — I find that hair spray removes these marks from almost anything. Spray and then wipe quickly. — FRANCES

DEAR GIRLS — Hair spray is good for removing such marks from many things but do try it on an inconspicuous spot first so as to see the effect on the finish of the dresser. If the ink has soaked into the wood itself I do not think it will help. I found it removed such marks (fresh ones) from a table but dulled the finish. The shellac finish seemed to disappear when the hair spray was wiped off and waxing was required to restore a gloss. Try with reservations as the finish on the piece will be the determining factor in its success. As far as I know there is no sure cure but if the piece is heavily waxed the ink may have penetrated through it only and then it would come off. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — With vacation time here we would like to share our family's easy way of getting sand out of sleeping bags. Clean them thoroughly with the vacuum cleaner and then generously powder the inside with baby powder (other talcum did not work for us) then rub your hand over the powder and when the inside is covered shake out the surplus. Next time the bag is used the sand will shake right out. — LOISH.

Mail Notice

To Wrong Set Of Customers

The best laid plans of mice, men and the telephone company occasionally go wrong, according to Bob Johnson, Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. manager in Sedalia.

Johnson was referring to a bill insert some Sedalia customers are receiving with this month's phone bill, telling them the business office in Webb City, Mo., is closing as of June 19.

"Our plan, of course, was to send the inserts to Webb City customers," Johnson said. "But they were misdirected to Sedalia by error."

Johnson said there is no need for concern because the Sedalia business office is not closing.

Diagnostic Technique Explained

Advances in the diagnosis and treatment of vascular disorders were explained to Sedalia Kiwanians at their meeting Thursday noon at the Bothwell Hotel.

Dr. William Cole, a chest and vascular surgeon on the staff of Bothwell Hospital, discussed the various techniques of angiography, a diagnostic method by which dyes are injected into blood vessels to reveal constrictions and other problems. Dr. Cole said that angiography, regularly practiced now at Bothwell Hospital, has been a great aid in permitting exact diagnosis of vascular disorders prior to undertaking corrective surgery.

The speaker illustrated his talk with X-ray slides showing cases in which angiography was used.

Dr. D. R. Edwards introduced the program.

Club members voted to approve a change to the by-laws that would reduce the number of standing committees from 18 to six, in accordance with a recommendation from Kiwanis International Vice President Bob Fritz explained the amendment.

It was also announced that the board of directors had voted to give $60 to the Cooperative Extension Service to pay expenses of four young people to the Extension Opportunity Camp. Beacon in the Night, a local organization to help persons with drug problems, also will receive $25 per month from Kiwanis for a six-month trial period.

Birthday greetings were extended to Clarence Evans. Singing was led by Wendell Smith, accompanied by Mrs. Keith Maynard.

Scratch Fever Is Quite Rare

Dear Dr. Lamb — Could you please explain what cat scratch fever is and its after affects if any? I have children who play with cats a lot and I would like to know how dangerous it is. They are often scratched by them.

Dear Reader — Cat scratch fever can be caused by any puncture or scratch on the skin. It doesn't have to be from the claws or teeth of the cat. It just happens that the cat is the most frequent source of these minor skin injuries in children.

If it is caused by a cat it is not because the cat is sick, it is just because the germ that is responsible for the illness is on the cat's claws or teeth.

The truth is authorities haven't agreed yet on the exact cause of cat scratch fever, that is, whether it is a bacteria or virus or some other germ. Most investigators think it is a virus.

If the skin is broken the agent penetrates the body's defenses and sets up a local infection. This may be very minor, causing a few reddened bumps at the site where the scratch occurred. Sometimes there may be little blisters or a scab. Usually the site of the scratch heals without even forming a scar.

The infectious process really hits the lymph nodes and as with other infections it attacks those lymph nodes directly in line with the lymph drainage from the injury. On the hand, the arm pit lymph nodes will be affected. If it is on the feet or on the ankles, it will affect those in the groin. The lymph nodes swell and become tender and sometimes the skin over them is reddened. Along with this the persons may have fever and a generalized, non-specific illness. The lymph nodes soften and gradually return to normal. Sometimes, the softened lymph node becomes an abscess and may drain. Usually even though the lymph node may contain pus it is not drained because it will then take longer to heal. Rarely encephalitis may follow such an infection but that is true of most virus infections too. Fortunately, the type of encephalitis that has rarely been observed following cat scratch fever apparently doesn't leave any residual brain damage.

There really isn't any good treatment. Antibiotics don't affect viruses and they don't cure cat scratch fever. About the only thing the doctor can do is to provide symptomatic treatment to make the patient comfortable.

I would like to add that considering the large number of cats in families and the number of cat scratches it is rather remarkable how rare this problem really is.

Rally for 12-7 Victory

Neville and Pledge Turn Tide In BJ Tilt Against Marshall

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

Sedalia can be thankful that they don't have to face the likes of righthanded hurler Bob Pledge. They can also be thankful that veteran Ban Johnson League catcher Larry Neville is on their side too.

Thanks to those two, Sedalia now owns a 2-0 mark in the early going of the 1972 Central Missouri Ban Johnson League schedule; that's good enough for the top spot in the western division standings.

Sedalia, who spotted Marshall a 7-1 lead at the end of two innings, rallied for five runs in the fourth and six in the eighth to pull off a 12-7 victory Thursday night in Liberty Park Stadium.

It was Pledge's near-perfect seven-inning relief stint and Neville's bat that carried Sedalia to their second win of the season.

In the only other league action Thursday night, Boonville had an easy time in hosting New Franklin, winning 9-4.

Winning pitcher for Boonville was Denny Sercu. Charley Melkersman took the loss for New Franklin, getting late inning relief help from Bob Littleton.

The winners took an early lead in the contest and were never headed.

Pledge, an all-Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association first team pick this past season as a freshman from the University of Missouri at Rolla, came on to relieve starter Terry Hudson in the top of the third inning under less than desirable conditions. At that time, Sedalia trailed Marshall 7-1, on some shoddy fielding in the first two innings.

But from then on, the game belonged mostly to Pledge and Neville. Pledge allowed only one walk, one hit and accounted for 14 put outs via the strike out route in the final seven innings.

Neville pounded out three triples and a double, drove in four runs and scored two others, in turning in his perfect night at the plate.

Noland Schubert, a third baseman from Knob Noster, also knocked in four rbi with a single and a triple.

Marshall got off to a roaring start in the first inning, pushing across two unearned runs.

Five more runs crossed the plate in the second, two of which were unearned, before Hudson could get out of the inning, giving Marshall a comfortable 7-0 margin.

Pete Green, Sedalia's shortstop, walked and later scored on Neville's initial triple, putting the locals on the board in the bottom of the second. But Neville was left stranded at third as pinch hitter Dave Nash was struck out by eventual losing pitcher Al Leimkuehler to end the inning.

Pledge came on to relieve Hudson in the third, facing a six run deficit.

He struck out Gary Appleberry to open the third, then was charged with his only walk of the game, yielding a base on balls to Leimkuehler. J. W. Dailey and Gary Miles became Pledge's second and third strike out victims to end the inning.

Pledge got no help from his teammates in the bottom of the inning, but kept on plugging away on the mound, sending Marshall down in order in the fourth.

In the bottom of the inning, Sedalia rallied for five runs on four hits, to get right back in the game. Sending eight players to the plate, Manager "Salty" Schumaker saw his squad pound out four hits and cash in on a pair of Marshall errors.

David Pirtle grounded out to Leimkuehler to open the inning, but Green followed with an infield hit and advanced to third on a pickoff attempt that got by the first baseman, Scott Schumaker struck out, bringing Neville to the plate. He added his second hit of the night, a double, that scored Green. Pledge walked and Derrick Crank reached first on an error. That loaded the bases and brought left fielder Steve Gerlecz to the plate; he promptly drove in Neville and Pledge with a single. Schubert picked up a pair of rbi by knocking in Crank and Gerlecz with a single. He moved on to second when the ball got by right fielder Jerry Kelly, but was tagged out trying to go to third.

That pulled Sedalia within one, 7-6.

The next three innings went quietly. But in the eighth, the locals made all the noise they needed and chased Leimkuehler into right field.

Mike Robertson opened Sedalia's half of the inning by legging out an infield hit; he went to third on Scott Schumaker's single to right.

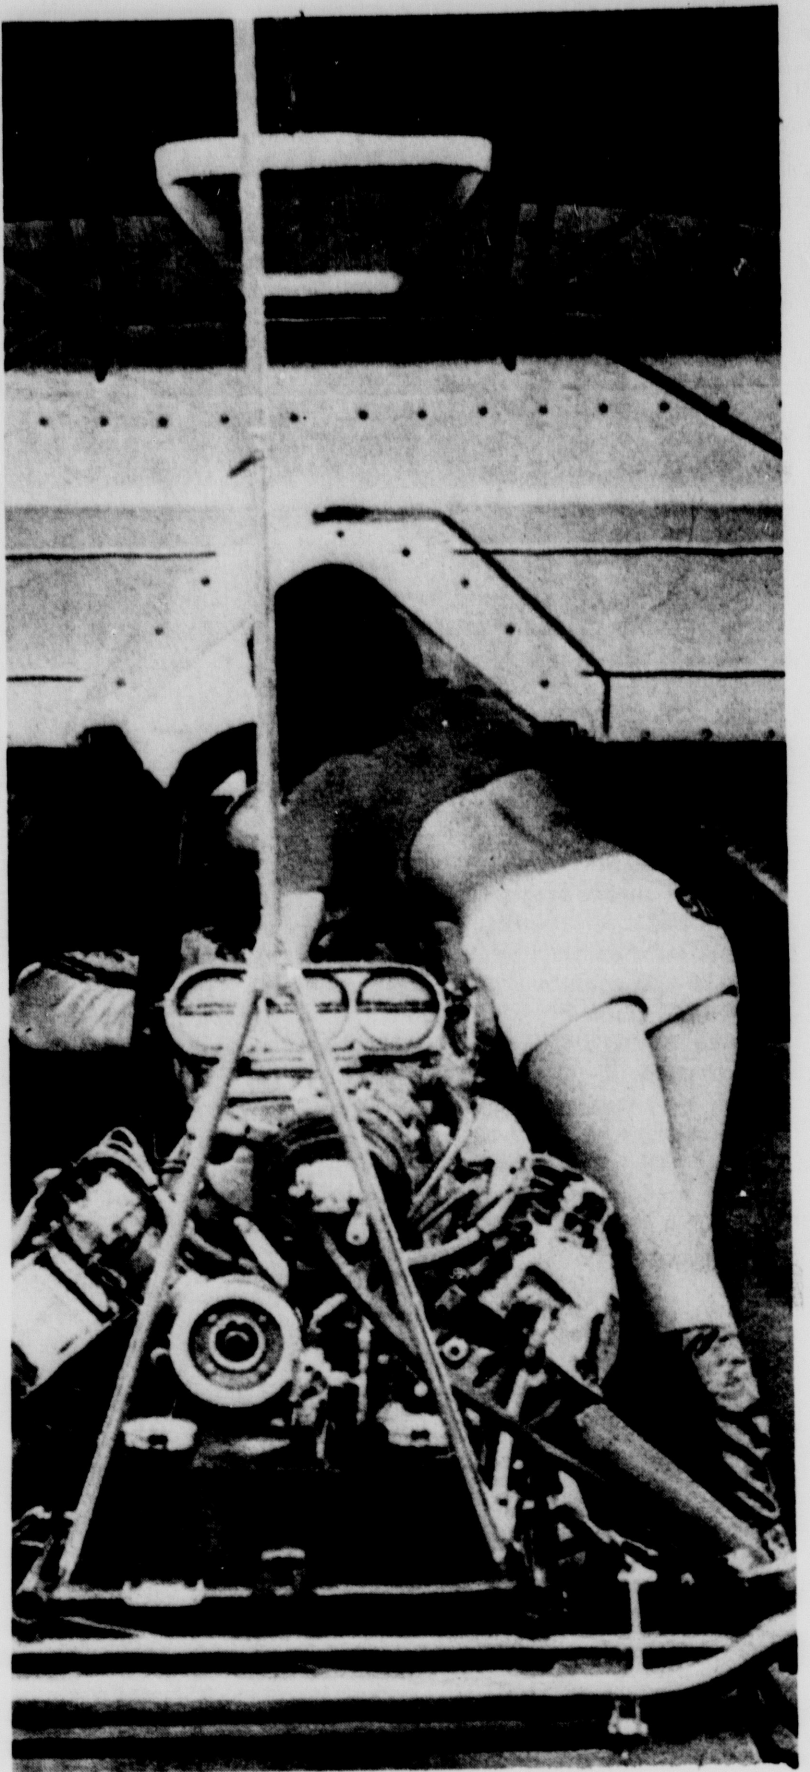

Enter Larry Neville. Neville drove in his third and fourth runs of the contest with his third triple, scoring Robertson and Schumaker. Pledge struck out, but Crank supplied Sedalia with a 9-7 margin with a single that scored Neville.

That did it for Leimkuehler, as Jerry Kelly came on in relief. He had little success, yielding a single to Gerlecz and a two-run triple to Schubert. Schubert scored the final run of the game on a single by Dave Pirtle.

Pledge, who had faced only 19 batters during his six-inning relief job between the third and eighth inning, was touched for his lone hit of the game by Bill Roberts, a pinch hitter for Leimkuehler to open the ninth.

Pledge put his fastball and curve to work on the last three batters he faced, striking out all three to run his total to 14 in that department for the night.

Sedalia will host Tipton in their next outing, Sunday, at 8 p. m. in Liberty Park Stadium.

Sources Say ABA May Be Dissolved

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Basketball Association begins a two-day meeting next Monday, and among the items to be considered are the reductions of teams and even the possible dissolution of the league.

Sources within the league told The Associated Press on Thursday that Memphis, Pittsburgh and Florida are clubs that may be cut from the 11-team league in order to bolster the financial stability of the organization.

Florida and Pittsburgh appear the prime choices to be cut since the Floridians attracted only 87,000 home fans last year and the Condors drew only 89,000.

Memphis, which had an attendance of 130,000, has a good sports building, and despite its drawing difficulty, the sources said some powers in the league would like to save the franchise in that city.

Dissolving the league would make it possible for the National Basketball Association to pick up the strongest teams from the ABA. It would also allow the leagues to circumvent the restraining order barring a merger of the ABA and NBA. Hearings before a congressional committee on the merger have been chaired by Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., who is against the merger.

An ABA source said the dissolving of the league might be tried but it was not likely because of the number of lawsuits it would bring from the players and their organizations, which originally obtained the federal injunctions barring the merger.

The New York Jets are scheduled to open their home football season at Shea Stadium against the Miami Dolphins Oct. 8.

Western Missouri AAU Finals Slated Saturday

Qualifiers for the Amateur Athletic Union's Western Missouri Finals in the Junior Olympics will compete at Jennie Jaynes Stadium Saturday, seeking qualifying berths in the Missouri Valley AAU Junior Olympics, June 24, in Salina, Kan.

The first four finishers in each event in the five age divisions (both boys and girls), will advance to the Missouri Valley finals.

From there, the junior, intermediate and senior division qualifiers move on to the Region VIII finals in Poplar Bluff, Mo., July 15.

Those senior division boys and girls, as well as intermediate boys and girls who post better times than their senior division counterparts, advance to the National Junior Olympics Championships in Spokane, Wash., Aug. 16-17.

Steve Fisher, Kathy Anderson and Lane Smith, all of Sedalia, who won the gold shoe awards in their respective divisions last week in the qualifying meet for Saturday's state finals, head the list of local and area entries.

Fisher won the intermediate boys (14-15) division gold shoe; Miss Anderson, competing in the junior (12-13) girls division, captured the gold shoe in that class, while Smith won the gold shoe in the boys' midget (10-11) division.

The opening events in Saturday's competition will begin at 8:30 a. m.

NHL Club For KC

MONTREAL (AP) — National Hockey League executives headed home today as the annual summer meetings drew to a close following the granting of two new expansion franchises to Kansas City, Kan. and Washington, D.C., and the drafting of the most promising graduating amateur players.

Shortly after the NHL Board of Governors decided, on the fourth ballot, to accept the bids from Kansas City and Washington for 1974 franchises, the 16 current clubs divided up the pick of the junior players.

As expected, the New York Islanders made right winger Billy Harris the No. 1 selection and the Atlanta Flames chose center Jacques Richard No. 2.

"I've been pretty excited ever since I learned I'd be the No. 1 choice," said Harris. "I haven't slept for a week."

Harris tied for the Ontario Hockey Association scoring championship with linemate Dave Gardner last season. Both players had 129 points. Richard left the Quebec junior league with 160 points including 71 goals.

Gardner and the third member of Harris' junior line, Steve Schutt, were both drafted by Montreal which had four first round selections as the result of previous trades made by crafty General Manager Sam Pollock.

The Canadiens also selected goalie Michel Larocque and defenseman John Van Boxmeer, taking four of the first 14 players chosen while have-nots like California, Los Angeles and Pittsburgh went through the round without a single selection.

The NHL clubs face a bidding war to sign the promising amateurs. Also after the youngsters is the rival World Hockey Association and Harris sounded the signal to open the auction when he said, "It's a matter of money. If the WHA offers me $25,000 or $50,000 more than the NHL, I'll go there."

While the final price for Harris and Thursday's other top amateur choices remained a mystery, there was none over the money bound for the NHL from the successful Kansas City and Washington, D.C. franchise bidders. It's $6 million apiece for the new clubs—the standard franchise fee for the league.

Kansas City's franchise went to a group headed by 37-year old real estate developer Edwin G. Thompson. Included in the investors is Jeff Jennings, son of New York Ranger President William Jennings.

Abe Pollin, owner of the Baltimore bullets of the National Basketball Association, was awarded the Washington franchise.

Central Mo. Zone Shoot Saturday

The Sedalia Rod and Gun Club will host the American Trapshooting Association's Central Missouri Zone Shoot Saturday and Sunday.

More than 100 shooters from out of town are expected to participate in the event.

Saturday, competition will be held in the 16-yard central zone singles championship, as well as the preliminaries of the zone handicap championship. On Sunday, the central zone doubles and the finals in the zone handicap events will be held.

The combined total prize list, which is being posted by the club and the ATA, will be around $2,000.

Competition in the five seniors classes, as well as the juniors division will be held for the men and women entered.

Competition both days will begin at 9 a. m.

Fishermen Try Cicadas

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Those noisy 13-year-cicadas — most people call 'em locusts — are providing some fantastic fishing in many parts of Missouri.

Bob Walsh, district supervisor for the state Department of Conservation, reported today from Table Rock lake fishermen are taking big carp and catfish on topwater lures fished to look like a cicada which has fallen into the water.

"I've caught two 16-pound carp myself," Walsh said. "The thing to remember is to let the lure lay almost quiet in the water — just twitch it once in a while. Find a spot below a bluff where the cicadas are falling into the water."

He said bluegills like cicadas, too.

Similar reports have come in from all the other big impoundments — Bull Shoals, Pomme de Terre, Lake of the Ozarks, Stockton — as well as from some streams, including the Salt River.

He is willing to go on, but it is all over for previously unbeaten Jorge Rodriguez as the referee stops the fight in the eighth round, Thursday night, in Los Angeles. With his left eye closed,

Rodriguez was unable to defend himself from the blows of Joe Medrano. Under California rules, Medrano wins by a knockout. (UPI)

Diego Segui Wins One For St. Louis Cards

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Veteran right-hander Diego Segui, who heeded two months for his first American League victory, required less than one day for his initial National League triumph against the reeling San Francisco Giants.

Segui, who was acquired by the St. Louis Cardinals from the Oakland A's Wednesday afternoon, hurled three innings of one-hit baseball to receive credit for St. Louis' 6-4 victory over the Giants Thursday night.

"I had to depend on Cards catcher Ted Simmons because nobody had told me about the Giants' batters," said Segui. "I just went out and tried to throw strikes and was fortunate that I could put the ball where I wanted."

"I was surprised I would win so soon," he said. "But I was ready to pitch because I hadn't thrown since facing Baltimore last Friday."

Segui, who was 0-1 with the A's in six appearances, has mixed emotions about leaving first-place Oakland for St. Louis. "I will really miss Campy (Bert Campaneris) because he was like a brother to me after all these years."

Segui added, "But I'm happy because my home is in Kansas City, and that's close to St. Louis."

"When I joined the A's in 1962, I pitched on opening day, but I didn't get my first American League win until June. I just hope I can keep helping the Cardinals."

Segui was the beneficiary of a five-run, eighth-inning Cardinals' rally that chased loser Sam McDowell, 6-4, and handed the Giants their sixth straight setback.

McDowell, who has not won since May 22, entered the eighth with a 4-1 lead and nine strikeouts to his credit. McDowell helped forge that advantage with a two-run triple in the sixth.

But Ted Sizemore opened the eighth with a walk, and Matty Alou and Joe Torre walked, loading the bases. Simmons followed with a three-run triple, chasing McDowell, and Donn Clendenon greeted reliever Don McMahon with a game-winning two-run homer.

Stratman, Spurell Lead ADCO to Win

Dewayne Stratman pitched a no-hit shutout and Marvin Spurell smacked two home runs as ADCO posted a 4-0 victory over Western Auto in Junior Babe Ruth play Thursday night in Centennial Park.

Sunrise Optimist defeated VFW in the other game, 10-1, behind Jim Vansell's pitching.

Pat Fiene was the losing pitcher for Western Auto; Mike Marcum was charged with the loss for VFW.

Stratman walked only three batters in the game, and got added support from Randy Pettit, who hit a pair of doubles.

Sixth Win of Season

Parsons Stings Royals

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Bill Parsons, a lean 6-foot-6 pitcher, has accounted for six of the 16 major league baseball victories for Milwaukee this season.

Parsons got No. 6 Thursday night, working into the ninth inning and gaining credit for a 4-3 victory over the Kansas City Royals, who failed to produce a comeback rally this time.

Amos Otis started one by crashing a long home run to lead off the ninth, and Joe Keough followed with a pinch single.

That's when Manager Del Crandall sent Parsons to the showers and waved in Ken Sanders, relief specialist, who stopped the Royals cold.

"I just went out and threw my sinker and slider," said Sanders, who was charged with Wednesday's 5-4 loss, but got credit for a save this time. "I had as good stuff Wednesday, but this time I think I was a little sharper."

Parsons said he "felt fine in the ninth." He gave up seven hits.

Favor Key to the Mint, Riva Ridge in Belmont

NEW YORK (AP) — Kentucky Derby winner Riva Ridge, Withers winner Key to the Mint, and eight other 3-year-olds were entered today for Saturday's 104th running of the $125,000-added Belmont Stakes.

Others entered for the 1½ mile classic at Belmont Park were Zulu Tom, No Le Haze, Freetex, Big Spruce, Prince Fauquier, Ruritania, Smiling Jack and Cloudy Dawn.

The entry of Cloudy Dawn came as a surprise. The colt is owned by William Bancroft and trained by Frank Whitley. Pre-kick winner Bee Bee was not scheduled to try the Belmont.

Post time for the race will be 5:35 p.m. EDT with television coverage from 5-6 p.m. and radio coverage 5:25-5:45, both by CBS.

Key To The Mint will be backed by one of the great winning Belmont Stakes teams — trainer Elliot Burch, jockey Braulio Baeza and owner Paul Mellon.

This will be Burch's fourth Belmont and he won his previous three, with Brookmeade Stable's Sword Dancer in 1959 and with Mellon's only other Belmont horse, Quadrangle in 1964 and Arts and Letters in 1969.

Baeza, a veteran of 10 Belmonts, won with Sherluck, who returned $132.10, biggest payoff in the history of the race, in 1961; Chateaugay in 1963, and Arts and Letters.

Bank Squad Replaces S-M In Standings

Farmers and Merchants Bank cracked out a team total of 113x125 at this week's summer league shooting competition at the Sedalia Rod and Gun Club and replaced S-M Sporting Goods as the current leader in the overall league standings. However, that lead is only one point — 397-396.

Letourneau Construction moved out of last week's fifth-place tie and has taken over possession of third place, four points behind S-M.

High individual honors were shared by Jim Hamilton, Bud Greer, Clint Hibdon, Charles Baker, David Dove and Bill Sprinkle, each with 24x25.

League Standings

1. Farmers and Merchants Bank, 397; 2. S-M Athletic Goods, 396; 3. Letourneau Construction, 392; 4. Tucker's DX Service, 391; 5. State Fair Restaurant, 387; 6. (tie) Trojan Seed and Broadway Realty with 385 each; 7. Ray's Skelly Service, 384; 8. Third National Bank, 383; 9. LeRoy's Steak House, 380; 10. Osage Thrift Shop, 379; 11. Lee's Archery, 370; 12. Turner's Sheet Metal, 369; 13. Jack and Jim's NuWay Cafe, 364.

May Hold Right Key

Rokeby Stable's Key to the Mint could well hold the key to victory in Saturday's Belmont Stakes, the final leg of horse racing's triple crown. He's hoping that he has the right combination against the field, which includes Kentucky Derby winner Riva Ridge. The race is the longest of the three races that make up the triple crown—one and one-half miles. (UPI)

"That pitch to Otis was a fast ball and it was a little high—higher than I wanted it," Parsons said. "Otis is a good hitter and he knew what to do with it."

Bob Lemon, Kansas City manager, said Parsons "changed speeds, moved the ball around and got us out. But (Paul) Splittorff pitched a hell of a game, too. If he pitches like that every time he'll win a majority of his games."

The Royals, 5-2 in their current 10-game homestand, had a 1-0 lead going into the seventh, and that's when their usual sturdy defense slipped.

Three hits, a hit batsman and a two-base throwing error by Cookie Rojas gave the Brewers three runs.

Billy Conigliaro singled, Tommie Reynolds was nicked by Splittorff, then John Felske bunted past the mound and was called safe by umpire John Rice—a call that was disputed by the Royals.

Elie Rodriguez hit a liner to Rojas, who threw to first to double up Felske. But the throw got past John Mayberry and went into the dugout, giving all runners two bases. Parsons popped a soft shot into center for his fourth hit of the season and drove in Felske with the third run.

In the eighth, the Brewers got their winning run on singles by Bob Heise, Joe Lahoud and Conigliaro.

Kansas City opens a three-game series tonight against the New York Yankees. Jim 'Booker, 2-2, will pitch for Kansas City and Mike Kekich, 4-4, for the Yankees.

displacement. Three types of boats, pleasure craft, runabout and hydroplane, will be competing at speeds ranging from 65 to 110 miles an hour for $750 in prizes.

National and world champion drivers expected to be present include Dan Kirts of Elkhart, Ind.; Stan Levendusky of Kansas City, Kan.; and Jim Schoch of Quincy, Ill.

The speed trials and races, sponsored by the Concordia Jaycees and presented by the Kansas City Speedboat Association, are open to the public.

Anyone can smile when all finesses work. When they all lose, even strong men weep, but sometimes really strong bridge players manage to come out smiling.

North has a very sound raise to two spades and there is nothing wrong with South's jump to game. As a matter of fact, there are those who might make some sort of mild slam try with the South hand.

East wins the heart lead and returns a club. South makes his correct play, the 10, and West takes his jack.

West leads his singleton trump. South picks up the trumps and now has a chance to win the crying championship of the year. All he has to do is lead a second club and finesse the queen. West takes his king and returns the suit.

Eventually South loses the diamond finesse and complains bitterly that while a lucky player would make a slam, he is so unlucky that he can't even make game.

A good player sitting South plays just the least bit differently. He takes the diamond finesse first. It loses, but now the good player cashes his ace of diamonds; enters dummy with a trump; leads the jack of diamonds and watches the 10 fall from the East hand. This establishes dummy's nine and since the deuce of clubs has been discarded on the jack, the queen of clubs goes on the nine.

There is no need to try that second club finesse and South makes his contract.

Southern Running Mate Seen As McGovern Help

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George McGovern, planning a campaign swing through the South, says a Dixie running mate "would be helpful" assuming he were qualified to take over the White House without a major change in policy.

Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida and former Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina came to McGovern's mind in an interview the day before he defeated Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey in the California Democratic presidential primary.

Humphrey, in the wake of that loss and McGovern's victories in three other primaries Tuesday, also talked about a possible running mate Wednesday. He reversed himself and said Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace would be acceptable to him if Wallace endorsed the party's platform at the Democratic convention in Miami Beach next month.

In the interview, McGovern, now the clear front runner for the nomination, also named Sen. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut and Sen. Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota as potential vice-presidential candidates.

Before flying back from California to Washington Wednesday night, McGovern said he will make his Southern trip before the June 20 New York primary. Aides said that probably means the latter part of next week.

When asked about a running mate, McGovern said someone "well qualified to take over the White House on a moment's notice" whose views are in the "same ballpark as mine" is needed.

In the interview, conducted as he flew from San Diego to Albuquerque enroute to a fence-mending mission with Democratic governors meeting in Houston, McGovern was asked about the importance of geography in picking a running mate.

"Other things being equal,"

he said, "if you could get a Southerner, I think it would be helpful."

He agreed that Askew's strong identification with the school-busing question—the governor unsuccessfully fought an antibusing resolution in Florida—might be a problem but added, "I'm very high on him."

Asked to cite others, he mentioned Sanford, beaten by Wallace in the North Carolina primary last month.

McGovern said Ribicoff and Mondale have been recommended to him.

Ribicoff, 62, is Jewish, and McGovern did poorly in Jewish sections of California. Ribicoff has had good relations with labor leaders and party regulars except for Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley. Ribicoff gave the nominating speech for McGovern at the 1968 convention.

Mondale, up for re-election to the Senate this year, is known to have his eyes on a race for national office, possibly in 1976. He is 42.

Ann Landers

Sketches of Wives That Lead Men Away

Dear Ann Landers: When I read the poem from the wife to "The Other Woman" I began to think about the married couples who live in this neighborhood. Here are a few thumbnail sketches of the wives:

Bernice: Wears curlers 24 hours a day. Is a chronic complainer and gets stoned every afternoon on beer. By the time her husband comes home for dinner she is staggering around the kitchen, blind.

Marge: Visits neighbors all day and says she can't do housework except on impulse. These impulses always come at night — when her husband says he is getting ready for bed.

Emily: Weighs 280 pounds. When she eats (which is all the time), she drops food on her chin and clothing. Her bosom looks like a snack tray.

Lenore: Has told all the neighbor ladies they are fools to let their husbands "use" them as substitute call girls. She says SEX is DEGRADING unless a woman is in the mood. Her "moods" come twice a year.

I am a widow (under 40) and have been propositioned by every one of their husbands. One soft smile, one wide-eyed, listening look and I could be the Other Woman. It shouldn't be that way. Tell 'em, will you? — Huntington Station

Dear Hunt: Tell 'em what? There's nothing left to say!

Dear Ann Landers: I am divorced and my husband has remarried. I gave him custody of our 13-year-old son because I felt it would be better for an adolescent male to be with his father. I have custody of our 16-year-old daughter. She is a handful but we get along reasonably well.

Last night I came home from my night-school class early. The teacher became ill and the class was cancelled. I caught my daughter and her boyfriend in a most embarrassing situation. There is no question about what they were doing.

The boy is 17 — her steady — a nice kid, good student, no bum. He left without saying anything. My daughter was so humiliated she couldn't face me. It's just as well. I was completely unstrung and wouldn't have known how to respond. Please tell me how to deal with this situation. I am — In Pieces

Dear L.P.: You sound like an intelligent woman so I needn't tell you there should be no yelling, berating or punishing. Once a girl has crossed that line the chances for total abstinence are slim.

Discuss with her the seriousness of a physical relationship — the risks, the commitment, the emotional investment. Make certain she has plenty of information. A mother who does this is not condoning pre-marital sex, she is being sensible and realistic.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm heartsick over this and don't know what to do. Last week I was watching my favorite soap opera on TV and my dear friend and next door neighbor telephoned. I said, "I'm washing my hair. I'll call you back." Five minutes later she knocked on the door. She had brought me a freshly baked cake. She could see I was not washing my hair and was very hurt. I apologized but she would not accept my apologies. I've called her three times since but each time she says, "I'm washing my hair," and hangs up.

Please tell me what to do now. — Sorry In Sacramento

Dear Sorry: Forget it. You've let her know you're sorry and there's nothing more to say or do.

If the friendship ends because of this, it wasn't worth much.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What To Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Senate Confirms Nixon's Nomination of Kleindienst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid clashing cries of politics and cover-up, the Senate confirmed by a 64-19 vote Thursday Richard G. Kleindienst's nomination as attorney general.

The nomination of the conservative Arizona lawyer to succeed John N. Mitchell in the Cabinet post was submitted by President Nixon on Feb. 15.

It became enmeshed in a controversy over the Justice Department's out-of-court settlement last year of three antitrust suits against International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

In the final debate before the vote, liberal Democrats contended an effort to get the full story on whether a political deal was involved in the settlement had been stymied.

But Republicans retorted that the Democrats were playing election-year politics and that no evidence had been produced of any improper conduct by Kleindienst.

Immediately after the vote, Kleindienst said he was "humbled and flattered" by the Senate action.

"I am deeply grateful for the opportunity now to go back to work as attorney general of the United States without the interruption and intervention of this kind of situation," he said.

Later, the Senate confirmed by 83 to 0 the nomination of another Cabinet member, George P. Shultz, to be secretary of the Treasury. There had been no organized opposition.

No Republicans voted against Kleindienst's confirmation, while the Democrats lined up 26 for the nomination and 19 against.

Of the Democratic presidential candidates in the Senate, only Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington voted for confirmation. The others either voted or were recorded in opposition.

The liberal Democrats who led the opposition had hoped to make a better showing. They had been estimating privately they could muster 25 votes against Kleindienst.

The Senate Judiciary Committee held 22 days of hearings investigating whether the settlement was linked to a pledge by ITT's Sheraton Hotel subsidiary to help San Diego meet the costs of a Republican National convention.

Kleindienst, who approved the settlement as deputy attorney general, swore to the committee that he had no knowledge of the convention contribution until months later.

The committee, in a majority report to the Senate, held the settlement was the result of arm's length negotiations and not the product of political influence.

Before Kleindienst's confirmation, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., moved that the nomination be returned to the Judiciary Committee for additional hearings not to exceed 25 hours.

This was defeated by a 63-20 vote.

The committee majority has rejected several moves to reopen hearings.

Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, a Judiciary Committee member, said efforts to continue the hearings were just a politically motivated fishing expedition.

The nomination was submitted Feb. 15, two weeks before Mitchell's resignation to direct Nixon's re-election campaign became effective.

Initially, after two days of routine hearings, the Judiciary Committee unanimously recommended Kleindienst's confirmation despite what some liberal Democrats called his repressive law enforcement policies and objections to his civil rights record.

But right after the committee acted, columnist Jack Anderson published a memo purportedly written by Mrs. Dita D. Beard, ITT's Washington lobbyist, linking settlement of the antitrust cases against the giant conglomerate to its financial commitment for the GOP convention. Mrs. Beard later denied writing the memo.

At Kleindienst's request, the committee reopened its hearings. He said he didn't want to take office as attorney general with a cloud over his head.

Postpone Cable TV Hearing

Circuit Judge Frank Meyer Thursday postponed the hearing date on the second count of a petition filed by Cablevision, Inc., against the City of Sedalia to determine whether Cablevision was legally justified in raising its rates $1 a month last year even though the City Council rejected the rate-hike request.

The hearing was originally set for June 15 and 16, but Judge Meyer will be out of town those dates to attend a state judicial conference. Judge Meyer did not schedule another date for the hearing.

Judge Meyer ruled in March, on the first count of the petition, that the city has the legal authority to regulate rates charged by Cablevision.

The City Council rejected a rate-hike request by the CATV firm last year to increase its rates from $4.90 to $5.90 a month. Cablevision, however, ignored the decision and put its rate increase into effect July 22, 1971.

This was shortly followed by cancellation of the firm's non-exclusive franchise by the City Council. But in a request by Cablevision for injunctive relief from the cancellation ordinance, Judge Meyer ruled in favor of the CATV firm, provided that the money received from the $1 rate increase be placed in an escrow account.

Depending on Judge Meyer's forthcoming ruling, the money in the account will either be retained by the company or go back to the firm's subscribers.

Heaviest Strikes In Three Weeks

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese marines stormed the nine-mile defense line above Hue and advanced into enemy-held territory Thursday while U.S. officials disclosed the heaviest air strikes over North Vietnam in three weeks.

Close to Saigon, government troops battled North Vietnamese forces menacing the capital's western flanks. A South Vietnamese bomber trying to flush out the enemy at Trang Bang accidentally dropped napalm on young children, villagers and government soldiers, killing or wounding about 20 persons.

About 1,000 men fought several hundred North Vietnamese at the district town 28 miles northwest of Saigon. They called in napalm and bombs.

In neighboring Cambodia, enemy ground and rocket attacks on the capital of Phnom Penh and the nearby town of Takhmau killed at least 20 persons, including 18 women and children huddled in trenches.

Navy and Air Force pilots smashed a trucking center on the outskirts of Hanoi and ranged near Haiphong and the southern port of Vinh, crippling bridges, petroleum depots and supply stores. B52s bombed supply caches 9 and 17 miles above the demilitarized zone, the U.S. Command said.

Associated Press correspondent Richard Blystone reported more than 2,000 marines, using tanks and backed by massive U.S. air support and naval guns, moved over the My Chanh River into northern most Quang Tri Province.

High sources said the mission was to take prisoners, evacuate refugees and gather intelligence, but they did not rule out the possibility of holding ground which might put them within striking distance of Quang Tri.

Associated Press photographer Huynh Cong Ut reported from Trang Bang that perhaps a score of civilians and soldiers were killed or wounded by the napalm dropped in the wrong place by a South Vietnamese air force A1 Skyraider. The propeller-driven plane dropped four drums of jellied gasoline only 50 yards from a Cao Dai temple.

Medics treated youngsters whose skin had been charred in the searing inferno.

Military sources revealed another accidental air attack occurred Wednesday, southwest of My Chanh, where airborne troops are pushing against enemy soldiers above Hue. South Vietnamese A37 jets struck advance paratrooper units, killing nine and wounding 21, the sources said.

Over-all casualty figures released Thursday showed 11 Americans were killed in action, two died of nonhostile causes, and 20 were wounded in the week ending June 3, bringing casualties since the start of the offensive March 30 to 85 killed and 255 wounded. The U.S. figures represented little change from previous weeks.

Electrical Burns Are Suffered By Otterville Man

A 21-year-old Otterville man suffered severe electrical burns Thursday when his hand accidentally came in contact with a 7,200 volt power line about two miles north of Bothwell Lodge on Old Highway 65.

The man, identified as Jack Page, is listed in serious condition at Bothwell Hospital where he underwent approximately 45 minutes of emergency treatment following the accident. A hospital spokesman said Page lost a finger on his right hand during surgery.

According to reports, Pate is employed by the L.P. & H. Construction Co., Tipton, which is in the process of moving old utility poles in the area.

It was reported that another construction worker who was at work higher than Pate, heard a crackling noise, looked down and saw Pate's hand on the power line.

The second construction worker, who was not identified, wore insulated gloves and managed to get Pate's hand loose from the power line, it was reported. Pate's safety harness kept him from falling off the utility pole, one source said.

Water Department Praised at Session

The Sedalia Board of Public Works reviewed the fiscal 1971-72 audit in its regular monthly meeting Wednesday night and was told the Water Department was doing a "remarkable job."

The board also installed a new member, voiced no objection to the formation of the independent Maplewood Water District, and started the ball rolling to apply for a 50 per cent matching grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development for future improvements in the local water system.

Harry Hempy, of the Kansas City accounting firm of Haskins and Sells, discussed the audit report and said it contained no exemptions or faults.

The largest item in the auditor's statement was a "modest increase in revenues" — $320,000 generated by the water department. Herb Taylor, manager, said much of that amount had been reinvested in the new plant building and equipment. A second feature outlined in the audit was the growth of the water works surplus account, which increased in the past fiscal year by $65,000 to a total of more than $120,000.

Taylor said although the surplus was commendable, it was far short of the estimated $850,000 that may be needed to finance necessary environmental improvements by the federally-established 1976 deadline. He explained that the proposed HUD grant would be used to supplement the surplus sum in order "to take care of whatever we have to do to meet the standards of both the Missouri Water Pollution Board and federal pollution regulations."

He said the exact standards the company will have to meet will not be known until a $3,500 study by Black and Veatch, consulting engineers, is complete. Funds for the study, which Taylor said would be finished in about four months, were authorized Wednesday night.

According to Taylor, the water department hopes to obtain a temporary permit to continue dumping alum, lime and mud "sludge" from its filtering system back into Flat Creek. He told those present, "We are breaking the law now, but we have no place else to go."

He said that he has not yet received complaints from citizens regarding the action. He added he was recently informed that previous plans to dump 90 per cent of the sludge water into the city's proposed southwest sewage lagoons would not be allowed by the federal government.

"They didn't say why we couldn't use the lagoon. We may have to eventually build our own lagoon," Taylor said Thursday.

The Black and Veatch study will essentially determine the standards applicable to Flat Creek regarding the amount of permissible pollutants that can be injected into the stream. For example, Taylor explained, materials deposited in

Report Meals-on-Wheels Grant

The Missouri Valley Human Resource Development Corp. is reported to have earmarked a $1,000 grant from the Office of Economic Opportunity for the meals-on-wheels program here.

Mrs. Vicki McNeese, community organization program director of MVHRDC, Wednesday told the monthly meeting of Pettis County Council on Aging that Max Sutherland, MVHRDC executive director, Corder, has assured her of the $1,000 grant provided the council gets its budget approved by the State Office of Aging.

The council, which recently submitted to the state office a $13,570-a-year meals-on-wheels budget, has asked for a $2,900 Title III federal grant. In the event this grant is not approved, the council can, in the light of the $1,000 MVHRDC assurance, apply for money from the federal Program Resources for Older People (PROP). In this case, the council would need to ask for only $1,900 in PROP funds since the remaining $1,000 has been assured by MVHRDC.

The council discussed these and other budget details with Richard Kammerer, field representative from the Office of Aging, Jefferson City. He told the meeting that if the $2,900 Title III funds are not approved, the council can apply for PROP funds, which takes less red tape and less bookkeeping. Kammerer said he will inform the Rev. John H. Thornberry, council chairman of the disposition of the council's application for Title III funds.

In the light of possible changes in projected expenses and donations, the council revised its annual budget from $13,570 to $12,750.

The council adopted by-laws presented by Wilfred Lee, 2314 South Kentucky,

McGovern, Muskie Meet

HARRY F. ROSENTHAL,

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George McGovern talked with Sen. Edmund S. Muskie Thursday, and McGovern said Muskie asked for more time to decide his future role in the campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"There was no pressure from me to get him to withdraw or release his delegates," McGovern said after a brief discussion with Muskie in a room off the Senate floor.

Aides to Muskie confirmed the meeting. And they said Muskie would announce his decision Friday in a luncheon address to the National Press Club here.

Reports persisted that Muskie would abandon entirely his campaign and support McGovern.

McGovern said he and Muskie discussed only "staying in contact and avoiding disrupting the Democratic party."

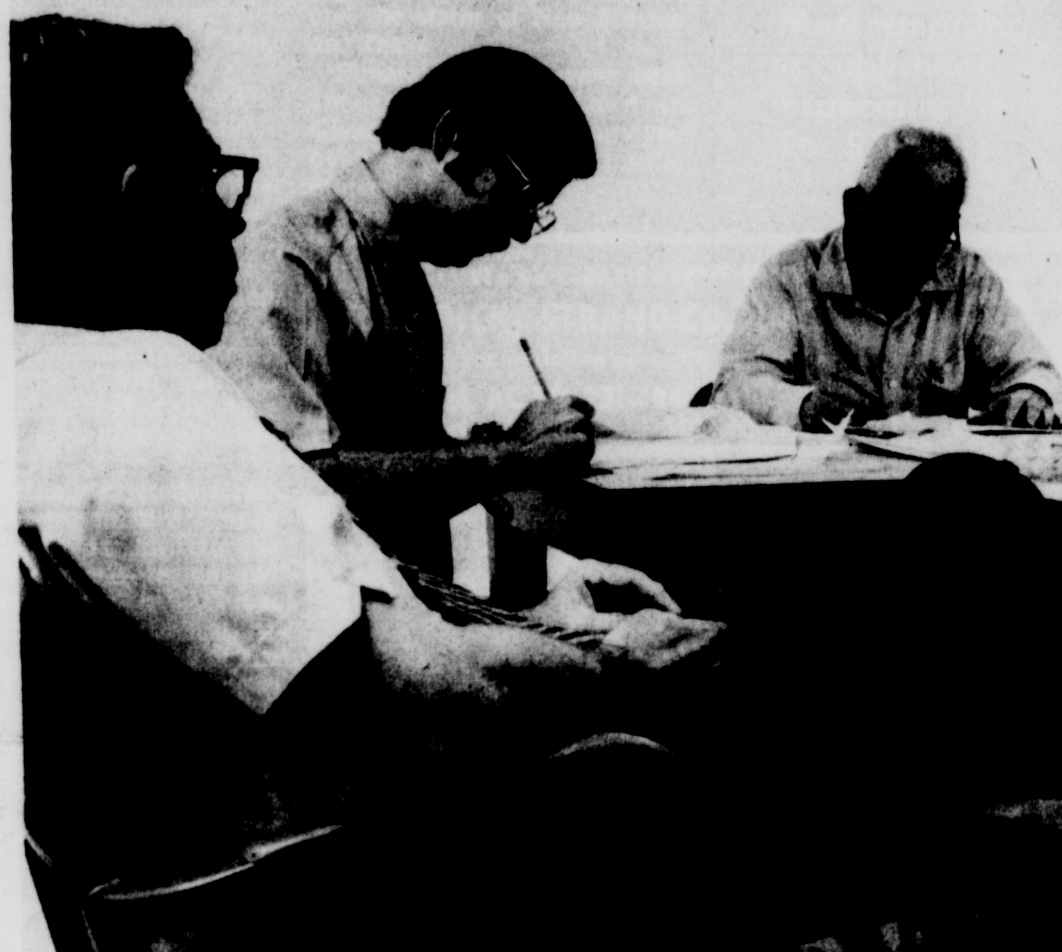

McGovern quoted Muskie as saying he was most interested in defeating President Nixon. "And so am I," McGovern said.

Later, both Muskie and McGovern told newsmen their meeting was "friendly and neighborly" but would not disclose details.

Muskie replied with a smile and a "No" when asked if he had any specific plans at this point to release his delegates to McGovern.

The two senators posed for photographers and were joined by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., another Democratic hopeful.

As for talk that Muskie is leaning towards McGovern, Humphrey said, "The

Figuring It Out

Richard Kammerer, center, field representative from the Office of Aging, Jefferson City, attended the monthly meeting of Pettis County Council on Aging Wednesday at the Federal Building. The council has asked for federal funds to support the proposed meal-on-only information I have comes from you gentlemen of the press."

Muskie has 166 delegates committed to him at the Democratic National convention. If these were added to the 907½ McGovern now holds, it would give McGovern a clear shot at the 1,509 delegate votes to win the nomination.

McGovern, of South Dakota, Muskie, of Maine, and Humphrey were in Washington for the Senate vote on confirming Richard G. Kleindienst to be attorney general. All opposed Kleindienst's nomination.

Two other Democratic hopefuls met Thursday. Rep. Shirley Chisholm, of New York, paid a 15-minute visit to Alabama Gov. George Wallace, in a Silver Spring, Md., hospital where Wallace has been since he was shot at a campaign rally May 15.

Mrs. Chisholm said they had a pleasant visit.

"We both in our way fight for what we both believe," she said.

On the Republican side, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell said President Nixon would not conduct an abrasive campaign this fall in his bid for reelection.

"I can assure you... we are going to run the type of campaign that will reflect the dignity of the incumbent," Mitchell, national campaign director of the Committee for the Re-election of the President, said at a news conference.

Soaring Gold Prices Pressure The Dollar

NEW YORK (AP) — The rocketing price of gold is putting downward pressure on the dollar but economists doubt it will be enough to force another change in exchange rates.

Although the dollar is being quoted at floor rates in Europe and Japan, interest rates on dollar loans are going down. This indicates that dealers do not expect any new dollar devaluation.

"I don't think there is any danger," said Dr. Robert Chandra, economist for Argus Research Corp. "The speculation in gold is putting pressure on the central banks, but they won't give way because that would admit that speculators could change bank policy."

"There isn't any widespread run on the dollar and I doubt the U.S. will be pushed into anything. If there were any devaluation, it would be accompanied by a general devaluation of all currencies in gold terms."

"At some point the people who have bought gold for a rise are going to have to start taking profits and when they do the pressure should be over."

As gold prices climb, some overseas investors are selling their dollars in order to buy gold. Even the ones not buying gold are selling dollars because the dollar's value is going down.

Mining people say there is not much chance the increase in the gold price will raise production enough to meet the demand. South Africa, the world's largest producer, says its production will go down after 1974 because the best ore deposits will be exhausted. This will happen no matter where the gold price goes.

As for the rest of the world, it would take a year for gold production to increase, the experts say. Mine operators would have to be convinced the price rise was permanent before they would invest the funds to bring out and treat more ore.

In addition, the costs of labor and equipment in gold mines is rising rapidly. The rise in the gold price is barely keeping pace with these costs.

Old man Z called for the jack of diamonds from dummy. East produced the king and Z let it hold. The 10 was returned and Z had to play his ace.

He remarked, "When I played this hand for Sidney Lenz in a rubber bridge game in 1924 I made sure of three no-trump by playing three rounds of hearts and then leading dummy's last diamond. I discarded two clubs from dummy and two clubs and a heart from my hand. West could lead anything he wished but it didn't matter. The lead was sure to give me my ninth trick."

"Unfortunately this is match-point duplicate and most other North players will have used Stayman to get to four hearts. Five hearts is unbeatable and six hearts will make if East holds the club king so I must go after everything that isn't nailed down.

After this peroration Z proceeded to enter dummy for a successful club finesse. Then he cashed the hearts and clubs to come down to a final problem of locating the queen of spades.

By this time Z had a good enough count to know that East had started with five spades. This made the odds that he would hold the queen a substantial five to two and Z picked it up to make six no-trump and a top score instead of a safe three no-trump for a bottom score.

Poor Rail Service From Amtrak Here

What is behind the deteriorating rail passenger service provided Sedalia by Amtrak?

A story elsewhere in today's paper describes the results of a 30-day check of departure times of Amtrak's National Limited from Sedalia, both east and west. They show that late departures, often exceeding two hours, are the rule rather than the exception.

The worst offender is the westbound train that originates in New York. Besides being chronically late, it has lately been plagued by a host of other problems, including filthy cars, some without water, and inoperative air conditioning.

It recently pulled into Sedalia with the air conditioning out in four of its six cars, including the dining car. It was also running an hour and a half late.

From interviews with conductors, ticket agents, Amtrak passenger service representatives and executives, this newspaper has received the strong impression that some of the blame falls on Missouri Pacific, which was a reluctant partner in Amtrak from the outset and would appear to be making less than an honest effort to provide dependable, efficient service.

The taxpayers, who are footing most of Amtrak's bills, deserve better. While they are probably willing to spend the money necessary to get rail passenger transportation back on its feet after years of neglect and decay, they have a right to expect continued improvement in service, rather than a return to the old days.

On Tuesday Senate-House conferees urged Congress to pass a compromise bill providing Amtrak almost $600 million more in federal grants and loan guarantees. Despite our disappointment at the current level of service, we would favor such action. But only with the assurance that things will start looking up on the National Limited.

Rhodesia: A History Of Errors

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — It was one of the maxims of Euripides that a bad beginning makes a bad ending. The story of Rhodesia, which last month closed another melancholy chapter, offers an example of the rule in operation.

Kilpatrick

From the time Rhodesia declared her independence from Great Britain in the fall of 1965, blunder has followed in the footsteps of folly. If in the beginning the most elementary precepts of international order had been obeyed—if the United States especially had observed the rules of right conduct — today's miserable impasse could have been avoided. It never worked out that way.

The thought of Euripides prompts a further thought. Richmond Lattimore once observed that, unlike conventional melodrama, which pits right against wrong, Greek drama pits right against right. For the past seven years the notion has been carefully cultivated in the liberal press that in Rhodesia, all the right is on the side of the 5 million blacks, and all the wrong on the side of the quarter-million whites. It is not so.

The African inhabitants make the self-evident point that they were there first. Their sheer numbers give weight to their case today. They have worked the mines and tilled the fields and contributed greatly to the country's wealth. Willingly or unwillingly, the African Rhodesians have inherited English principles of political justice, among them the principle of majority rule.

The European inhabitants respond to these contentions by asserting clear title—a title as good as any in Africa today. The British pioneers of 1890 found a Stone Age society. They and their children brought the capital, the tools, the know-how, the fierce ambition that lifted the primeval darkness. Their taxes and their leadership have given the Africans of Rhodesia, relatively speaking, good schools and good medical care. Blacks are represented in Parliament, in the police, and in the civil service. As for majority rule, the Europeans assert that the principle has been thought to apply only among those capable of governing, and not among those incapable of governing.

These were among the rights in conflict when Rhodesia declared her independence in November of 1965. By all the ordinary rules, and by the plain language of the United Nations charter as well, this business was wholly the business of Great Britain. It was none of the business of anyone else. But in a series of resolutions denounced by Dean Acheson as "patently illegal," the United Nations embarked upon a course of falsehood, hypocrisy, and double-standard politics. Thus were the sanctions imposed.

It was in an effort to put an end to this folly that Britain's foreign secretary, Sir Alec Douglas-Home, last year worked out an agreement with Rhodesia's prime minister, Ian Smith. The agreement was not perfect. In Commons on May 23, Douglas-Home fairly described it as "a compromise settlement which by definition will not wholly satisfy anyone, but which will gain for the Africans substantial new opportunities."

These substantial new opportunities now have been sidelined. With the report of a commission headed by Lord Pearce, finding the settlement not acceptable to a majority of the Africans, the whole delicate structure collapses. Sanctions will continue, and the mockery of these sanctions will continue also.

Rhodesia is a small country, but as Daniel Webster remarked of Dartmouth College, there are those of us who love it. It is a sad reflection of man's capacity for error that so much that is good and hopeful and right should be sacrificed, in this case, to UN policies that are vindictive, unrealistic, and wrong.

Merry-Go-Round

Nixon Kept Notes Of Moscow Talks

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — No transcript was kept of the face-to-face meetings between President Nixon and Soviet party chief Leonid Brezhnev in the Kremlin.

As an act of trust, the President didn't even bring his own interpreter into the conference room but accepted Brezhnev's linguist.

After each session, Nixon methodically transcribed his recollections of the discussion. His personal notes constitute the only U.S. record of the historic Nixon-Brezhnev talks.

From a source with access to these notes, here are some of the highlights:

On the eve of the Moscow meeting, the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks were still snagged in Helsinki over Soviet unwillingness to halt construction of missile-carrying submarines. But the President, alone with Brezhnev, leaned forward and said: "Dammit, let's settle it."

Then they hammered out the important agreement to limit nuclear weapons. At one point, Nixon jokingly suggested that Russia could substitute its mammoth SS9 missiles for submarines, since the new monster missiles resemble submarines in both size and shape.

"How do you know?" demanded Brezhnev gruffly. For Russia has tried to keep its SS9s secret from the world.

The President replied that they may as well be frank with one another about weapons, since both sides had excellent intelligence. Perhaps, he said, the Soviets might wish to mount SS9s on their submarines.

"This would sink the submarines," snorted Brezhnev.

"That is exactly what I had in mind," cracked Nixon.

The President found Brezhnev to be a hearty host but a hard negotiator. In the end, however, Nixon concluded that "the man can be trusted."

Perhaps even more important than the nuclear arms agreement, in the President's opinion, was a 12-point pact "to remove the threat of war" and "to promote reduction of tensions in the world." He felt this codified the new Soviet-American relationship and established the rules for avoiding future military confrontations.

The pact was proposed by the Russians and resisted at first by Nixon. He changed his mind, however, and decided it could be an instrument for peace. He personally drafted the 12 points between sessions in Moscow, and Brezhnev accepted most of the President's language.

Nixon drove himself relentlessly in Moscow, averaging only three to five hours of sleep the first six nights, as he followed the endless hours of bargaining with meticulous note-taking and painstaking preparations for the next session.

He was buoyed by his success and left Moscow exhausted but exhilarated. He told aides jubilantly that he felt more confident than ever of an enduring peace. The Moscow meeting, he genuinely felt, had made the world a safer place.

During a subsequent visit to a Leningrad castle, the guide showed the President some trick mirrors and a spot where the acoustics made a few hand pats sound like great applause. Nixon gleefully made funny faces at himself in the mirrors, then he announced: "I am going to applaud myself."

He patted his hands and beamed happily when the magnified applause roared back.

Footnote: Even Andrei Grechko, the dour Soviet defense minister who reportedly had opposed the Nixon visit, warmed up to the President. While Nixon was standing at attention for the Soviet honor guard, he felt a tap on his shoulder. It was Grechko, who made a good-humored crack about the marching soldiers.

Chaotic Society — President Nixon has told subordinates that he still believes in fiscal responsibility and will return to a tight budget immediately after the election. He will begin, he suggested, by cutting ex-President Lyndon Johnson's Great Society programs. Nixon has already drafted a list of 110 federal programs that he believes should be repealed or, at least, turned over to local governments. He will charge that the programs were hastily conceived and poorly administered. He also intends to warn, in effect, that the Great Society will wind up instead as a chaotic society, with the workers taxed beyond endurance.

Unfair to McGovern

Your editorial titled "McGovern's Reckless Defense Proposal" is at best poor journalistic judgment. If you would quit printing your biased opinion and explore the problem objectively, you would possibly start producing better editorials.

With a few ill chosen words you have associated and compared George McGovern (the front running Democratic candidate for presidential office) with Gus Hall (the perennial leader for the Communist party).

The most unfortunate part of this situation is that you are in a position to influence thousands of people with this type of insinuating editorial.

I would like to suggest that to millions of Americans, George McGovern represents the best opportunity for progressive change in our society. In a recent national poll he secured the highest vote on the following important attitudes:

- ✓ Puts country ahead of politics
- ✓ Has innovative solutions to problems
- ✓ Presents his ideas clearly
- ✓ Intellectual

These attitudes tell why George McGovern has done so well in the presidential primaries.

When 'Check Day' Comes Around

WASHINGTON — One of the most intriguing parts of Sen. George McGovern's tax-reform plan is that he would give every man, woman and child in the United States $1,000 a year in cash. The money would be taxable, and the majority of Americans would have to return it. But those in a low enough tax bracket or no tax bracket could keep the money as guaranteed income.

Buchwald

It blows one's mind to think what would happen if everyone in this country received a check for $1,000.

It is "check" day and Mr. and Mrs. Amberson and their three children—Robert, 17, Sarah, 14 and Todd, 9—have just received their $1,000 allotments from the government with a short note:

Dear American:

Enclosed please find a $1,000 check as part of my tax program. If you don't need it, please send it back to the treasury, as we can use any surplus money you can spare.

Sincerely,
President George McGovern

"Oh boy," Robert says. "Now I can buy a new motorcycle."

"Wait a minute," Mr. Amberson says. "I want all those checks I have to pay taxes on them, and since we're in the $20,000-a-year bracket, it all must be returned to the government."

"I'm not giving back my check," Sarah says. "It's made out to me."

"What are you going to do with $1,000, Sarah?"

"I'm going to buy record tapes with it. There are 200 Rolling Stone albums I want so badly I could die."

Little Todd shouts, "Hot dog, $1,000! Mom, how much bubble gum can you get for $1,000?"

"Too much," Mrs. Amberson replies. "You're not going to spend your $1,000 on bubble gum."

"Sean Reilly's mom lets him spend $1,000 on anything he wants to. Last year he bought his own Coke machine."

"No one," Mr. Amberson shouts, "is spending any of his money on motorcycles, tapes or bubble gum!"

"Would you believe a new washer and dryer?" Mrs. Amberson asks.

"No, not even a new washer and dryer. This is not our money. It belongs to the government," Mr. Amberson cries. "Why can't you get that through your heads?"

"Why would the government send it to us if it didn't want us to have it?" Robert demands.

"Because President McGovern believes it's easier to give $1,000 to everyone and then have them give it back. In this way you don't have a welfare mess."

"If I can't buy tapes with my $1,000," Sarah says, "I'm going to buy an airplane ticket to Japan, and you'll never hear from me again."

Little Todd says, "I think I'll buy a color television set for my room with half of it, and with the other half I'll buy Sean Reilly's baseball cards."

"The children can do what they want with their checks," Mrs. Amberson says, "but I'm not giving this one back. I earned this $1,000."

"How did you earn it?" Mr. Amberson asks.

"By working 18 hours a day, 365 days a year!"

"Please," Mr. Amberson begs, "endorse the checks and give them to me. I'll put them in the bank and on April 15 we'll send them back to the government. Otherwise, I'll wind up going to jail."

There is dead silence in the dining room. Suddenly Sean Reilly comes in waving his check. "Hey Todd, I'll buy your roller skates for $1,000."

"Sold," Todd says.

"Hurry up," Sean yells, "before my dad finds out where I am."

"I think Mr. McGovern jumps over the lot too often and he may regret some of the things he said," Klein said at a Detroit news conference. He said Paris is the proper place for talks.

Political attention centered on the McGovern-Muskie situation.

McGovern lunched privately with three senators who support his nomination and one of them, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., later said:

"He's confident he's got the nomination and so are we."

Ribicoff said the question of a Muskie endorsement was not discussed.

McGovern, who plans a campaign swing through the South, told a newsman earlier a Southern running-mate "would be helpful" if he agreed generally with McGovern's policies and views and was qualified to take over the White House without major policy changes.

Humphrey had introduced the name of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace Wednesday as a possible running-mate stressing that in order to gain any consideration Wallace would have to endorse the platform adopted at the Democratic convention.

Resurfacing Plan For City Streets

City Engineer Robert Cunningham Thursday announced that work crews have begun a 52-block asphalt resurfacing program that will continue throughout the summer.

During the next several days, the following streets will be resurfaced, Cunningham said: 28th from New York east to the city limits; Howard west of Harding, and 12th between Ingram and Washington.

Cunningham described the coating as a mixture of liquid asphalt and crushed rock. He warned that a coating which must be sprayed on before the asphalt is spread will cause the streets to have an oily texture.

Abandon All Hope For Trapped Men

WANKIE, Rhodesia (AP) — All hope was abandoned Thursday for 424 men trapped in a coal mine by a triple explosion. Searches were under way in the wreckage for their bodies.

One of eight men injured by the blasts on Tuesday died in a hospital. Seven other bodies have been found.

Sir Keith Acutt, the Wankie Colliery chairman, said indications are that the 424 missing men "died instantaneously and were not aware of what had happened."

Rockfalls, fire, poison gas and secondary blasts apparently doomed anyone who escaped the initial explosions.

There has been no sign of life from underground. Rescuers listened in vain for "pipe talk," the tapping on metal conduits of men who may have found sanctuary in a pocket of fresh air.

Two rescue teams led by South African specialists were using explosive charges to clear rubble and get through rockfalls to the bodies.

Sustains Injury In Stairway Fall

George Mabray, Cole Camp, sustained a laceration to his head in an accident at the Bothwell Hotel at 3:55 p.m. Thursday.

Mabray was descending the stairs to the basement of the hotel when he slipped and fell, according to police reports.

He was taken to Bothwell Hospital by ambulance where he was admitted and listed in satisfactory condition Thursday night.

Education Measure Passed by House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Thursday passed the $21.3-billion education bill containing the strongest anti-busing provision ever approved by Congress.

The bill, which authorizes funds for a wide variety of programs ranging from elementary school to graduate school, was sent to President Nixon by a vote of 218 to 180.

Its busing provision would halt for 18 months any school desegregation ordered by the federal courts until all appeals have been exhausted.

An unusual coalition formed by members who objected to any limitations on the courts in their efforts to desegregate the schools and those who wanted more than the bill would provide opposed the bill.

Its backers tried to soft-pedal the busing issue and stressed the educational benefits of the bill in bidding for support.

The major educational provisions would:

—Launch a new program of direct federal aid to colleges and universities that could provide them with as much as $1 billion a year.

—Entitle every college student to a grant of $1,400 a year, minus what his parents could afford to contribute toward his education.

—Authorize $1 billion a year to help elementary and secondary schools desegregate.

—Establish a National Institute of Education to foster research into all aspects of the learning process.

The money figures in the bill only set the ceilings for the program. The actual funds would have to be appropriated in separate legislation and could be considerably lower.

Education Measure Passed by House

Secretary Elliot L. Richardson of Health, Education and Welfare said the bill is "a landmark in the history of higher education" although he said its antibusing provisions are deficient.

Despite the massive aid authorized and the sweeping nature of the bill, almost all the debate centered on the busing provisions, which were added originally by the House in stronger form.

A compromise with the Senate all but nullified two of the amendments dealing with funds for busing and put a Jan. 1, 1974 deadline on the key provision blocking court orders while appeals are pending. The original House version would have made it permanent law.

Anti-busing forces, who objected to the weakening effect of the compromise, led the fight to defeat the bill.

The vote split both parties sharply, 130 Democrats and 88 Republicans supporting the bill, and 104 Democrats and 76 Republicans voting against it.

House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, who wound up voting against the bill, has reported that President Nixon is also strongly opposed to the busing provision, but no threat of a veto was raised during the debate.

Nixon has proposed his own antibusing legislation, including a one-year moratorium on new busing orders and permanent guidelines for the courts to follow which would permit busing only as a temporary, last resort.

Enactment of the busing provisions in the education bill is expected to end congressional action on the touchy subject this year, leaving Nixon's proposals buried in the committee.

Coordinator Is Selected For Campaign

R. J. "Bus" King, Republican candidate for governor, has named Mike Hawkins, 725 West Third, as coordinator for youth affairs on the King for Governor Steering Committee in Pettis County, it was learned Tuesday.

"I am pleased to make this appointment ... and others all over the state of youth whom I have contacted because I have been impressed with their seriousness, their ideals and their energy," King said.

In addition to first-time voter registration, the youth committee will survey youths on such issues as gun control laws, no fault insurance, educational progress and state government reform, King said.

Otis Thomas, chairman of the Pettis County steering committee, said "I am ... encouraged by the fact that Mike and other young persons of Pettis County are being involved in King's campaign."
